around the table to the small, sliding door of the galley. Pierre was gone. In another moment he was back at Stan's side. "Yes, the half-caste's loose on deck. But it's Gorilla Smith who's behind this. Where's Toppy?"

"I don't know." Stan's breath came short. "Isn't he here?"

"No." Tod's lips barely pronounced the word. He touched his friend's arm. "We've been fools! Gorilla Smith is Thatcher—Mr. X. He must have loosed Pierre and the two of them are working together. We're prisoners."

For a moment the other made no reply, then as Tod felt the arm under his hand tremble, he knew that the boy realized for the first time the full meaning of their position.

"Tod," he whispered. "What'll we do?"

Chapter Nineteen

TOD crept back to his bunk. When he had turned in at midnight he had slipped his automatic under his pillow. In the darkness he felt along the bunk board, thrust his hand beneath the pillow. The gun was gone!

Why had he allowed himself to be caught in such a trap! He shook Jorgenson's arm until the big seaman awoke.

"Don't talk," Tod whispered, "Pierre's got loose. We're locked in."

It seemed an interminable time before Jorgenson's slow brain grasped their desperate situation. Finally he swung his long legs down to the flooring. His voice sounded loud in the stillness as he asked, "Where's Toppy?"

"Don't know," Tod whispered back.

"Yuh mean—he's out on deck?"

"I think so. Be quiet. We've got to make plans."

Tod crossed to the opposite porthole and looked out. Dawn was near; the dark outline of a large island rose ahead of them, with a string of lights twinkling along the distant shore. Could it be Papeete they were approaching? Surely, now that Gorilla Smith was in control of the Wind-rider, he would make for some outlying island where he could slip ashore in the early dawn and leave his prisoners to be discovered later.

"Why, that's Papeete!" Stan was at his elbow, gazing shoreward.

"Are you positive?" Tod asked, puzzled.

"Absolutely. Who's at the helm?"

"I just saw Pierre go forward; so it must be Smith. Does either of them know this passage into the harbor?"

"Pierre must. If he's worked for Corkery he must have taken this schooner into port many a time."

"I'm glad of that," Tod said grimly. For already he could hear the distant throb of the surf breaking over the coral barrier.

Behind the island peaks the sky grew lighter; a silver radiance stole over the surface of the sea. The narrow deck with the low rail at its edge took form. There was no sign of either of the two men who held them prisoner here in the cabin. And Toppy—where was he?

Suddenly an abrupt cry came from the prow—Pierre's voice pitched to a note of sheer terror. "Look, monsieur! The tupapau of Tahiti Jacques!"

Tod's heart missed a beat, and he heard a quick gasp from the boy beside him. Then he realized that Stan's fascinated gaze was fixed upon the water just a little ahead of them. Following that glance through the little porthole, Tod discerned the gray shape of a dolphinlike fish plunging in and out of the swells. Tahiti Jacques had returned!

Again Pierre lifted his voice in a cry of despair. "The tupapau!" the half-caste wailed. "We are doomed!"

From the stern came the gruff voice of Gorilla Smith. "Cut that out, you fool! It's only a fish. Pipe down!"

Pierre was beyond listening to reason. "It is Tahiti Jacques!" he shrieked. "Tahiti Jacques whom you killed. He comes for revenge!"

"You poor fool," Gorilla Smith snarled. "If I killed him, this can't be the same fish. You're crazy!"

In the dawning light Tod bewilderedly watched the great fish. The silver-gray body, perhaps ten feet long, rolled through the swells and then plunged downward, its two-pointed tail rising for an instant in the air. Was this Tahiti Jacques? Had the strange pilot of the reef recovered from his wounds?

"Stan!" Tod broke out. "Is it really Tahiti Jacques?"

Stan turned, oddly tense and exultant. "Yes, it is! Jacques has come back."

"That's great," Tod said a little huskily. He knew that to Stan Tahiti Jacques was a beloved part of home.

A sudden patter of rain beat upon the deck. Another morning squall, rushing in from the sea, had overtaken them. Suddenly the patter increased to a drumming that filled their ears like the machine-gun bombardment of an enemy's attack.

Then into Tod's line of vision came the drenched figure of Pierre, stumbling aft, his dark face twitching. "Ah, nom de Dieu!" he moaned. He paused just opposite the porthole. "We cannot see the passage!"

"What of it?" growled Gorilla Smith.

"But, monsieur, if you follow the tupapau of Tahiti Jacques it will lead us right on to the reef. It is after its revenge."

"So much the better!" snarled Smith. "I'm steering straight for the reef. We'll knock such a hole in this schooner's bottom she'll sink before the town is awake! When we hit, all you have to do is jump." He chuckled sardonically.

Tod drew a sharp, stabbing breath. So that was Gorilla Smith's cold-blooded plan! He'd sink the schooner with its incriminating evidence, drown like rats the men who knew his real identity, and reappear in Papeete as the fortunate survivor of a shipwreck.

No! Suddenly there welled up in Tod an overwhelming desire for battle. Give up without a struggle? Never! They'd fight for it. But how?

A touch on his arm made Tod turn. Jorgenson leaned toward him. "Say the word, Third, an' I'll break down that door."

"No, Jorgenson." Tod shook his head. "Smith is armed. He'd shoot down the first man who appeared."

For a moment Tod remained perfectly still, gathering his thoughts together with desperate haste. There was not a second to lose, for even above the steady rainfall came the boom of the breakers on the reef. He thrust his head close to the porthole.

"Smith," he called, his voice steady in spite of his lack of hope. "Let us out. Give us a chance!"

The man laughed harshly. "Let you out? You must think I'm a fool! And don't call me Smith. I'm Thatcher, and you know it. But you'll soon forget it—I'm seeing to that." He laughed again.

"It's no use, Tod," Stan muttered. "Look here." He dropped to his knees on the flooring as Tod swung about. "There's a trap door into the bilge. I almost forgot."

Instantly Tod was beside him. "Are there other openings from the bilge?"

"Two more. One into the forward hold, the other aft where the auxiliary engine is."

"The forward hold is full of cargo," Tod reflected. "There isn't a chance to get out that way. How about aft?"

Stan pulled at a ring in the flooring and lifted a piece of the hardwood perhaps two feet square. "That's it!" he whispered. "The hatch cover over the old engine breaks through the stern deck abaft the helm."

Tod clutched Stan's arm. "The very thing. Lead the way. Come on, Jorgenson. It's our only chance. Remember Smith is armed."

Without a moment's hesitation Stan

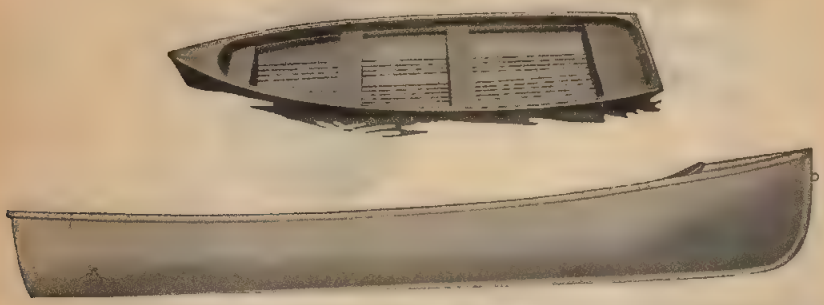
BOATS

THE "CORMORANT" MODEL

SMOOTH BUILT BOAT



The Cormorant is a large, roomy lake boat, suitable for harbor or inland use, that has been tried, tested and proven to be a faithful companion under any and all conditons. It has been especially designed for an outboard motor. Its clean lines make the Cormorant a fast boat with a rugged construction that is almost indestructible—an ideal boat for out of the way places where repairs are impossible. The planking is of full ½ inch thick cedar, compressed seam. No other boat, regardless of make or size, will give the riding comfort, the seaworthness, the safety aand the feeling of security afforded by this master craft.

The "Cormorant" Model—Keel, keelson, transom, stem, ribs and all frame work oak. The gunwales are riveted to the inwales with copper rivets. The oarlocks are latest type galvanized malleable iron. Length 16 feet, Beam 46 inches, Depth at Bow 25 inches, Depth at Stern 20 inches, Width at Stern 38 inches, Planking, clear cedar ½ inch thick. Weight, each, 200 lbs. Price without oars. $91.85

SPECIAL SQUARE STERN ROW BOATS

THE IDEAL CRAFT

The special square stern Row Boat is the ideal craft for a boat livery, hotel or summer resort. Its liberal depth and width, its fine entrance and clearance of graceful lines, its easy dead rise and good shoulders, its strong flat floor carried well fore and aft make this rowboat supreme in gracefulness, safety, durability and steadiness. Light running, capable of landing in shallow water, built for hard service rather than ease and cheapness of manufacture this is indeed the ideal craft.

BOATS

"STILL HUNTER" DUCK BOAT

Our improved "Still Hunter Duck Boat" comprises all the good features of the "Shell Lake Still Hunter" and the "Racine Muskegon Hunter." It is the last word in duck boats.

The Boat has flat bottom of white pine, finished smooth on the outside and ¾ of an inch thick, making a bottom that is indestructible and dispensing with chattering and dirt collecting floor racks. The sides are of cedar, full ⅝ of an inch thick and clinker construction. The ribs, coaming, deck beams, etc., are of oak. The deck lining is cedar covered with canvas. Anchor tubes pass through both decks. Each boat is complete with two removable seats and one paddle.

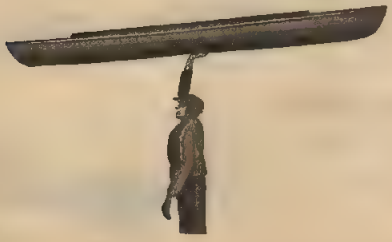
MALLARD QUEEN



THE STIFFEST, STRONGEST, LIGHTEST HUNTING BOAT EVER MADE.

The Mallard Queen hunting boat is positively sensational. Their light weight and flat floor make passage over bogs and shallows easily possible in spite of their great carrying capacity Where heavier and longer boats are impractical for portages over crooked and timbered trails these boats are ideal. Being canvas covered they are always dry. After years of experimentation, the Shell Lake Boat Company has developed a filler, the mineral contents of which permeates the pores of the canvas and stays put, making a tough leather-like skin that will withstand an unbelievable amount of abuse.

Mallard Queen—Length 12 ft. 2 ins. Beam 41 inches. Cockpit 7 ft. 6 inches. Decks 28 inches. Under Cockpit 9 inches. Weight 54 pounds. Each $46.00

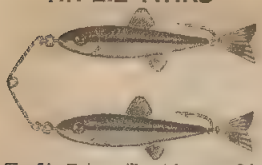
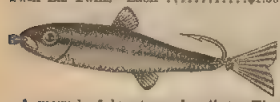
CASTING & TROLLING BAITS

TIN LIZ TWINS



Tin Liz Twins will catch more fish, more different kinds of fish and more different sizes than any lure or lures ever before offered for sale. Two fish at one cast are frequently taken. Not too big for perch, crappies and other pan fish, yet big enough for bass and pike. Heavy enough to cast well. Combines in one unit the visibility of a large bait plus the deadly attraction of small crippled minnows. Two ¼ oz Tin Liz on a spreader.
Twin Liz Twins Each $1.00



A marvel of beauty and action. The lightest bait ever produced. Made of duralumin—trimmings from the dirigible AKRON. Can readily be cast with a fly rod. Does not sink too fast and has nice action even at slow speed.

Parkette
Fountain Pen and Sets

Made By
PARKER PEN CO.

PARKETTE

In keeping with the trend for quality merchandise at popular prices, the Parker Pen Co. has brought out a line of pen and pencil sets at a figure astoundingly low in comparison with their regular line.

Into these sets they have put all the skilled workmanship and exactness so characteristic of "Parker" made pens and pencils. The same trained craftsmen and mechanics employed in the making of their regular line have used their knowledge and ingenuity to make this special line of sets worthy of the name "Parker." They have so much faith in this line that each and every pen and pencil is stamped with their name.

The pens are fitted with high grade 14K solid gold iridium tipped pen points, ground to perfection by experts so as to insure a smooth writing pen. The pens fill with the gold filled lever found along one side of the barrel. New shape clinch style clip set in such a position that it will rest comfortably in the pocket. Double bands set in both on top and bottom of the cap.

The pencils have a reliable three-action movement, which in addition to propelling the lead, also repels and expels it. A reservoir for the extra leads, together with the eraser are contained on the inside of the barrel. The trimmings on the pencil match the pen in all respects. Both pieces are put up in a neatly designed presentation case.

The colors are the most popular on the market.

"Parkette" De Luxe. A pen and pencil constructed in the new sided style. The barrels instead of being perfectly round, have the new fluted shape (a concave design). The pen points are platinum plated over the solid gold base, and are generously tipped with iridium. Thin bands around the edge of the cap add a great deal to the appearance of this pen. The pencil is made up in the same manner. The trimmings, such as clips, levers, bands, etc., are chromium on the black sets, and gold filled on the other colors.

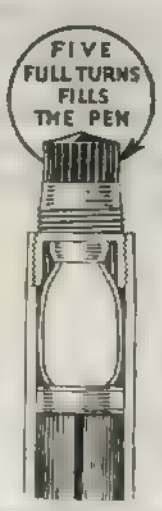
Wahl-Oxford Vacuum Filler Pens

TRANSPARENT BARRELS

Here is a revolutionary new pen that's a regular Camel for ink. Holds more than double the amount of ink held by ordinary rubber sac pens of the same size, because it fills entirely by vacuum. No pumps—valves—or levers. Five complete turns of the filler button at the end of the barrel does the trick.

The pens come in three styles: Large, Oversize Men's Model; Standard, regular size men's model; and the Standard, Ladies' size model with the new clip at the end of the cap.



DOUBLE THE USUAL INK CAPACITY

They are made of unbreakable Pyralin in four color combinations. Gold with a Black spiral web; Silver with a Black spiral web; Green with a Black spiral web; and Burgundy with a Black spiral web. The barrels of these are semi-transparent, enabling the user to instantly see how much ink his pen contains. Small cap at end of pen conceals the filler button.

This new principle, coupled with Wahl's reputation for good merchandise, insures the user an article that has merit and value.

Chinese Cloisonne—An Ideal Gift

IMPORTED FROM THE ORIENT

The history of Cloisonne is perhaps the most interesting of all the ancient arts of the Orient. It dates back to the court of Kublai Khan, A. D. 1275—an age of glittering splendor.

Emperor Ching T'ai, A. D. 1450-1458, patron of this art, gave personal attention to the workshops and from him Cloisonne takes its name. It was first called "Ching T'ai Lan" thus, Cloisonne held imperial prestige. Its manufacture and use was restricted until 1911 by royal edict.

Chinese Cloisonne is all hand made and comes in assorted colored backgrounds in a choice variety of floral designs and colors.

WEAVER DRIVE-OVER AUTO LIFT

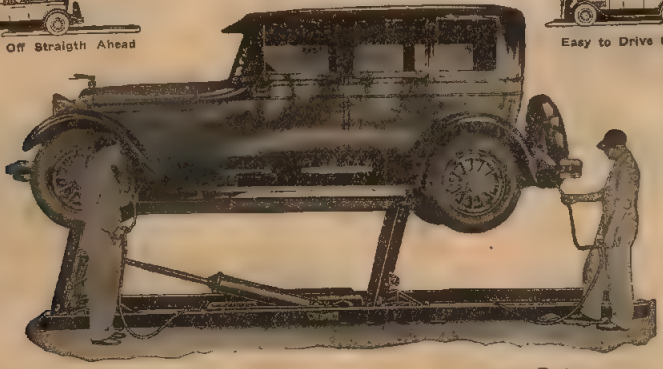
For Lubrication, Washing and Repairs



The Weaver Drive-Over Auto Lift is the latest word in equipment for raising cars quickly, easily and safely to the most convenient height for complete lubrication, washing and under chassis repairs.

Two features deserve special attention—the drive-over construction illustrated above, which enables the car to be driven on the Lift at ground level and straight ahead off the Lift, and the new power plant illustrated below, which can be used to operate as many as three Lifts, thus saving the expense and space of extra power units.

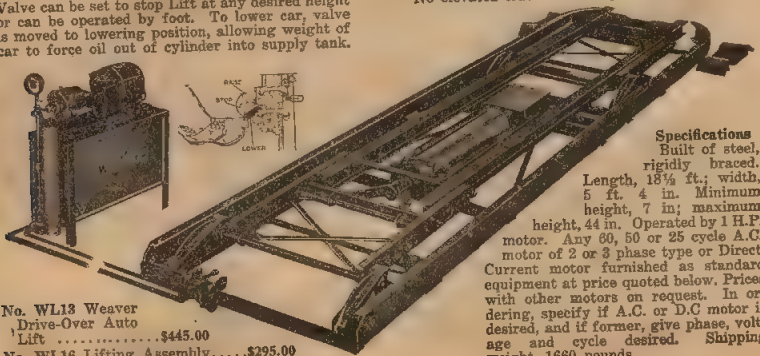
Power Plant Operates One to Three Lifts

The Lifts and power plant can be located wherever desired—side by side or at a distance from each other. The operation of each Lift is individually controlled by a foot operated valve, conveniently located at front end of Lift, as shown.

When Lift reaches its maximum height, valve is automatically closed, holding load stationary. Valve can be set to stop Lift at any desired height or can be operated by foot. To lower car, valve is moved to lowering position, allowing weight of car to force oil out of cylinder into supply tank.

Important Features

Can be placed inside or outside service station —no installation expense.
Requires less space than usual rack.
Handles various types of cars without difficulty.
Rigidly braced to prevent tipping.
Lifts by front axle and differential, wheels free.
Range of lift, 7 to 44 inches.
Can be stopped at any height—car always level.
Speedy—raises car in one minute and lowers in half a minute.
Simple in operation.
Recommended capacity, 6,000 pounds—ample overload capacity.
Absolutely safe against accident.
Power automatically cut off at max. height.
One horse power motor uses minimum current.
Side plates, depressed to receive wheels, locate differential over grating for lifting.
Opening in grating to drain differential.
No elevated tracks to worry timid drivers.



Specifications

Built of steel, rigidly braced. Length, 18½ ft.; width, 5 ft. 4 in. Minimum height, 7 in; maximum height, 44 in. Operated by 1 H.P. motor. Any 60, 50 or 25 cycle A.C. motor of 2 or 3 phase type or Direct Current motor furnished as standard equipment at price quoted below. Prices with other motors on request. In ordering, specify if A.C. or D.C motor is desired, and if former, give phase, voltage and cycle desired. Shipping weight, 1660 pounds.

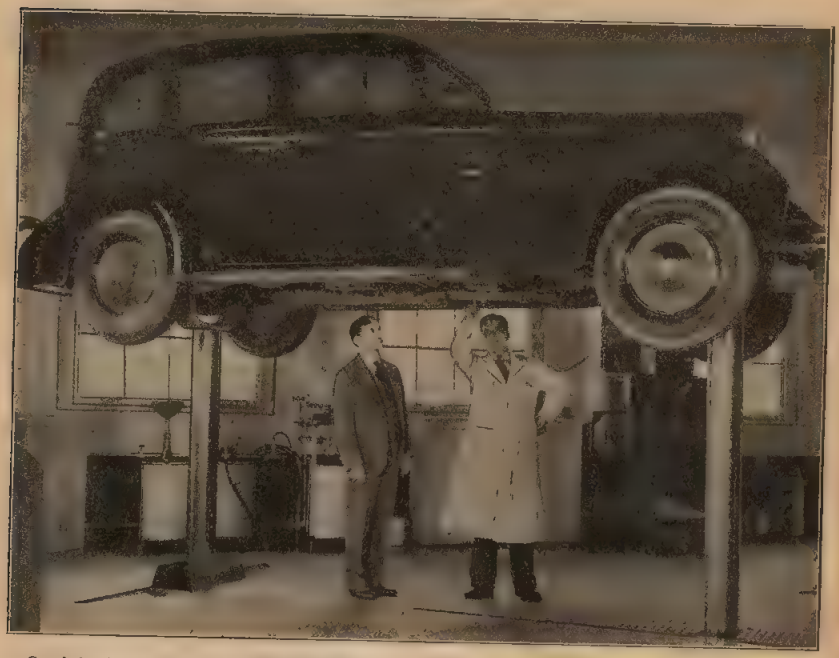
TWIN POST LIFT

WEAVER



Car design is changing; cars are getting lower and lower in addition to increasing complications in the under structure of the chassis. A new method is needed for service work.

It is invaluable in removing and replacing piston rings, piston pins, pistons, bearings, or any other work on the under side of the engine.

This lift makes it possible to elevate the car to the most convenient height and at the best angle to do the work efficiently. The same holds true of the other parts of the car such as the clutch, transmission, free wheel unit, booster brake, brake linkage, starting motor, muffler, stop and reverse light switches, universal joints and numerous other parts of the car. ....

Twisted brake cross-shafts, or shafts and levers that flex, bend or twist under pressure of severe brake application, are easily detected when the entire under side of the car is exposed. A complete brake lubrication job can be performed much more thoroughly and in half the time where there are no beams or rails in the way.

The wheels are free,—the chassis is absolutely unobstructed—the car can be tipped up and down on either end -it is so flexible that it destroys all preconceived ideas of lift performance and possibilities. It makes it possible to do many things that lifts have never done before—and does all the regular things that other lifts do—but it does them better faster—and easier.

It is built to Weaver standards of efficiency, practicability and general excellence. It is sturdy, reliable, easily and accurately controlled. It has power enough for any job that runs on the roads It is leak proof, it is not injured by water, is extremely difficult to injure in any way.

Specifications—Passenger Car Type—Height of Lift, 66 inches. Diameter of ram, 7½ inches. Fore and aft adjustment, 60 inches. Minimum distance rear post to front post, 100 inches. Maximum distance rear post to front post, 160 inches. Lifting capacity, 8,000 lbs. Oil capacity of tank, 36 gallons. Air presure requirements practically identical with 10% single post type lift.

Model EC-100—Air and Oil Operated—Each $385.00

Model EC-101—Electrically Operated—Each 530.00

Specifications—Truck and Bus Type—Height of lift, 62 inches. Diameter of ram, 10⅝ inches. Fore and aft adjustment 102 inches. Minimum distance rear post to front post, 102 inches. Maximum distance rear post to front post, 204 inches Lifting capacity, 24,000 lbs. Oil capacity of tank, 70 gallons.

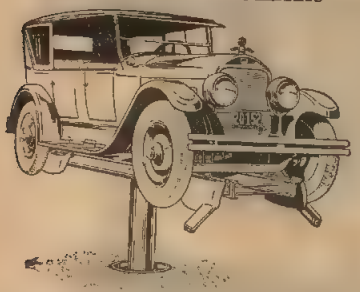
GARAGE EQUIPMENT

CURTIS ROTATING LIFTS

OIL-LOCKED—SAFE AT ALL HEIGHTS



Roll-On or Free Wheel Types

The Curtis Lift is not pneumatic. It lifts by oil, locks by oil, its speed is governed by oil. Not an atom of air in cylinder, plunger or pipe line leading from tank to cylinder.

When the lift is raised to any height, it rests on a solid column of oil as incompressible as concrete. That oil is locked in by an oil-lock valve between the oil supply tank and the cylinder. That oil-lock is unfailingly automatic. No one can neglect or fail to lock it. Therefore it is impossible for the Curtis Lift to drop or settle a fraction of an inch even if all the air is exhausted from the pressure tank.

1.—The Curtis Lift Cannot Lower with out two deliberate actions by the operator—he must both open the air valve then step on oil-lock valve.

2.—The Oil-Lock and air operating valves on the Curtis Lift are out from under lift. No one can operate lowering mechanism intentionally or accidentally while under lift.

3.—An Automatic Retard Valve restricts the outflow of oil and hydraulicly controls the lowering of the lift at a safe, predetermined speed, independent of operator.

4.—Platform "X" Construction of structural steel is the strongest known to engineering. No castings with the possibility of hidden defects. Tested to withstand 500% greater weight than normally called upon to hold. Platform made so attendant cannot get toes under edge when lowered.

5.—Packing Gland is at top of cylinder where need of adjustment can instantly be seen and easily made. No hidden, impossible-to-inspect leather cup on the plunger to wear or replace.

HOISTS

GLOBE

Safer—Quicker—Better

Globe Hoist Principle of construction differs from all other Hoists of this type in the following basic essentials:

The Oil Storage Tank is below frost line, electrically welded to the base of the cylinder—8 feet below floor line.

There is never any oil in the cylinder except when the Hoist is raised. Oil is never closer to the surface than 20-inches below at any time.

The inside of the cylinder barrel is bored, ground and honed as smoothly as a gun barrel. This construction eliminates the necessity of packing about the top of the cylinder. A packing gland will lose oil if loose, and will bind, preventing free and easy operation, if tight.

The Globe Hoist cup leather at the base of the piston is forced against the finished inside of the cylinder by the oil, automatically making a perfect seal against air or oil and and keeping the oil below the piston at all times.

No obstructions between Channels or I-Beams—nothing to keep service man from easy access to all lubrication fittings.

To Operate the Globe Hoist—

To Raise: Opening intake valve permits air to enter oil storage tank. This forces oil from the Storage Tank into the cylinder, raising the piston. The Hoist can be stopped at any point of elevation by closing the intake valve. Full elevation—4½ feet.

To Lower: Open exhaust valve and the weight of the Hoist and car will force oil back into storage tank, permitting the Hoist to descend.

Absolute Safety Assured—The Hoist can only descend as fast as 20 gallons of oil can pass through a one inch pipe 20-inches long. In addition, holes are drilled in the piston at intervals so that a bolt can be inserted, positively preventing the Hoist from descending even if all pressure were released.

Easily Installed—Only one hole to be dug. Only one day required One or two bags of cement. Illustrated instructions furnished.

PYREX BAKING WARE

It has long been obvious that glass would be the ideal material for cooking utensils. No glass heretofore produced could withstand the sudden changes of temperature incident to baking Pyrex is a development of applied science and experience covering forty years devoted to producing the highest grades of glass for technical service. Pyrex glass shows by actual test a heat conductivity 50 per cent higher than ordinary glass and nearly twice as high as carthenware of corresponding thickness. Glass is acknowledged to be the most sanitary material for any utensil requiring constant cleaning, and shows the slightest trace of dirt plainly. Does not absorb odors or flavors; does not craze or flake, a serious objection to all enameled, or earthenware. Affords more thorough cooking, more uniform results, and almost im possible to burn food cooked in the glass. Pyrex is made by the Corning Glass Works, the largest glass manufacturing plant in the United States

"A" Is the milled recess in the side plate of the mower into which the carbonized vanadium steel ball case "B" is forced under pressure. (See Figures 1, 3 and 4.)

"C" Is the Ball retainer filled with carbonized vanadium steel balls.

"D" Is the carbonized vanadium steel cone which turns on the balls.

"E" Is the conical contracting metal sleeve which fits into the milled-out cup in the back part of the cone. The wall of this sleeve is deeply slotted into six sections to make it sensitive to pressure. The steel thimble "F" is then slipped on the sleeve to give it strength at the BASE. This sleeve turns with the shaft, and, being completely enclosed, is not subject to any wear whatever from friction.

"G" Is a steel spring which works against the contracting sleeve.

"H" Is the steel case which covers and protects all the other parts when in operating position.

"I" In Figure 2 shows the end spider of the reel or revolving cutters fitting up against the steel case "H".

Figure 2 at "H" shows the parts when compressed into position and ready for action, only the steel casing "H" which encloses the parts being visible.

HARMONICAS

"Chromonica." Hohner Harmonica. Length 4⅞ inches. This Chromatic Harmonica supplies the half-tones (sharps and flats) not found in the regular style instruments. Because of this added feature, it permits the playing of almost any selection in any key. On account of its scope, the "Chromonica" is being used in public schools throughout the country and is recognized by musical authorities as an instrument of the orchestra. It has heavy convex nickel-plated covers, brass plates, 40 perfectly tuned reeds, and is fitted with a patented wind-saving device which allows for greater volume of tone. Available in all keys plus "Eb". Packed in a highly attractive and durable hinged box, patterned to resemble grain leather. Embossed gold lettering and novel colored design on outside cover. A special Instruction Book, "How to Play 'The Chromonica'," may be obtained free of charge.

No. 260—"Chromonica." Wt., per doz. 5 pounds 14 ounces. Per dozen $36.00

"Super Chromonica." Hohner Harmonica Lgth. 5⅝" not only supplies the half-tones (sharps and flats) not found in the regular style instruments, but contains many other outstanding features that make it unique in the Harmonica world. Embodying 3 chromatic octaves beginning with middle "C" on the piano, it has a range equivalent to that of the flute. This permits the playing of any selection in any key, and the wide scope of the "Super Chromonica" enables the player to obtain the notes in their natural sequence without the necessity of jumping to a higher octave. Another unique feature is the elimination of the bass chord accompaniment usually found in the first three holes of the standard Harmonica. In the "Super Chromonica" the "Do" note of the first octave is obtained by blowing in the first hole. Thus the "Super Chromonica" is distinctly a solo instrument, the same as the cornet or violin. This is certain to make it the choice of amateur and professional artists everywhere. It has beautifully etched heavy nickel-plated convex covers, brass plates, 48 perfectly tuned reeds, and is fitted with a patented wind-saving device which adds greatly to the tonal quality and provides increased volume. Packed in a beautiful wooden case lined with plush and sateen, colored silk band, embossed gold lettering and scroll design on outside cover, and two gilt locks. Available in keys of "C" and "G". A special instruction book, "How to play 'The Super Chromonica'," may be obtained free of charge.

CRESCENT TOOL CO.

No. WC3 Display Case

One of the most practical selling units for a retailer of tools is this display case. The neat arrangement of its contents causes it to attract tool buyers.

This case contains the best selling items of both the Crescent and Smith and Hemenway tools. The items were carefully selected after a study of sales records and none are slow sellers.

Under each tool on the board is a tag which gives the number, size and retail price of the tool.

Each tool is easily removed for the purpose of demonstration to a customer. Replacements are made from stock. The Crescent method of mounting tools in the case is an ideal way. Each tool is held by a steel clip which is slipped over a bolt and tightened down by means of a wing nut. A few turns of this nut (with the fingers) releases the tool.

Case is of quartered oak with veneered oak panel back. Door is hung upon strong hinges. A lock is mounted in the door.

Assortment consists of one each of the following tools:

THIS PISTON WAS PROTECTED BY PROTEX MOTOR OIL

This piston was removed from a Chevrolet motor run 21,296 miles to make this actual photograph. It shows the rings free and full of life. Oil rings and slots free from carbon and operating efficiently. All parts of this motor were protected and properly lubricated by using only PROTEX motor oil.

Proof of these facts will be furnished on request by the Apex Oil Products Company of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

THIS PISTON WAS NOT PROTECTED BY PROTEX MOTOR OIL

This piston was replaced after 19,000 miles, using a well known brand of high priced motor oil, which caused excessive hard carbon, loss of power, dilution, blow by, and increased gas and oil consumption.

Name of owner and make of car given on request.

EVERY CAN IS SEALED AT THE REFINERY FOR YOUR PROTECTION

So that all may know just what sort of oil is going into the cans, we are putting a super-fine grade of 100% pure Pennsylvania oil in every Penn-Champ can and SEALING it at the refinery, so that when the motorist gets his can, then he can be sure that it is all that we guarantee it to be. This oil comes right out of the heart of the finest oil regions in the world, and is piped directly to two of the world's largest refineries handling 100% Pennsylvania Oils exclusively. Here this oil is refined by processes that save all the life and vitality of the oil for motors, instead of wasting it in the refining processes, as nearly all refiners today are doing. These superior refining processes, plus the fact that only the finest 100% Pennsylvania crude is used, make PENN CHAMP an oil that gives the maximum VALUE for EVERY PENNY EXPENDED.

QUALITY

Penn-Champ takes no back seat when it comes to quality ,as this oil is produced by a refinery with more than sixty years' refining experience exclusively with 100% Pennsylvania crude. Extraordinary care is taken in every refining step to assure you and the motoring public that a quality second to none is sustained year after year. You and your customers take no chances when you handled and use Penn-Champ, which is in every sense of the word, THE CHAMPION OF ALL PENNSYLVANIA MOTOR OILS.

PRICE

Only the assurance of a dependable refiner source of supply and with unthought-of efficiency in refining methods and in merchandising, plus purchasing cans and cartons in huge quantities, makes it possible for use to offer genuine Penn-Champ motor oil at so low a price to you. In turn, you can sell this oil to the public at prices that match the price asked for oil of a very much inferior grade. Penn-Champ's low price plus its high quality, appeals to every motorist, and the marvelous way it stands up in the motors brings the motorist back for another can and also is a very large factor in the motorist's telling his friends about the quality and the great economy in using this CHAMPION of Pennsylvania motor oils.

RESPONSIBILITY

Throughout the world no company enjoys a more favorable reputation than the Pennsylvania Refining Company, refiners of Penn Champ, who have enjoyed sixty years of refining experience and have sent their petroleum products to every nation of the world. Financial organizations, such as Dun's and Bradstreet's, recognize the outstanding dependability of this large refining company, and both give it the highest rating obtainable. This company guarantees every drop of oil that goes into Penn Champ cans, and the jobber, dealer and the motorist can rest assured that they take no chances when they use Penn-Champ oil.

GUARANTEED 100% PURE PENNSYLVANIA

Every drop of oil that goes into a Penn-Champ can is absolutely guaranteed to be 100% pure Pennsylvania motor oil and to be made without the addition of any substance at all. This oil is made from 100% pure Pennsylvania crude that comes from the 22 wells that day after day are producing the finest crude oil in this world. Users of Penn-Champ have no fear of any contamination in their oil, as nothing but 100% pure Pennsylvania oil is ever used.

TWO-GALLON CAN IS HERE TO STAY

There is no question but that the two-gallon can of oil is here, and here to stay. Unfortunately, up to the present time, two-gallon cans have been put up by irresponsible, unreliable jobbers. The public did not get a square deal, as a very inferior oil was put up in these cans and sold as a quality product. However, those days are gone forever. And now the jobber and the motoring public will be pleased to know that one of the major refiners in the Pennsylvania Field is putting a quality product, guaranteed to be 100% pure Pennsylvania oil, in two-gallon cans.

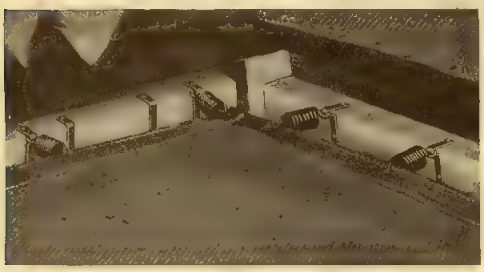
KARPEN SUSPENDED WEB CONSTRUCTION



GREATER LUXURY, GREATER COMFORT

Karpen furniture, long known for its great beauty, its comfort supreme and its splendid quality, now comes with a new degree of luxury. The most outstanding furniture development of a century---Karpen SUSPENDED-WEB construction with sagless, resilient spring support, is entirely revolutionary and brings a complete new meaning to that oft mis-used word COMFORT. Karpen "Suspended Web" construction is sagless, permanent and fully guaranteed. Instead of the usual narrow webbing, a single piece of webbing is cut to the shape of the seat and reinforced with a wire edge. This is securely attached to the seat front and suspended to the frame on the other three sides by tempered helical springs fastened by steel anchors tested for over 800 pounds pull each.

SQUARING SHEARS

A most valuable contribution is to be found in the fully-enclosed springs on Shears Nos. 132, 137, 142. In case of spring breakage possible injury to operator is avoided. Not like in older patterns do these springs stretch when the treadle is depressed. Instead they compress making for easier operation. In case of spring breakage the machine will continue to function until the broken spring is replaced. With the adoption of this new type of spring of proper proportions and temper interrupted production attendant upon spring breakages is largely eliminated. The compression type of spring also serves to hold in check the rebound of the treadle thereby reducing frequent breakage of treadle rods.

Originality is again claimed in the new and practical back gauge.

The upper knife bar is fitted with truss rod.

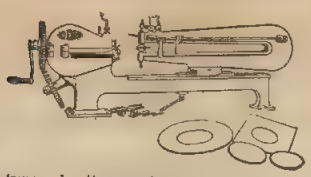
RING AND CIRCULAR SHEARS



These improved patterns make up for a very useful and efficient bench ring and circular shears, intended for cutting circles or internal rings and irregular curves. In circular cutting the blanks are clamped between rubber covered discs (A) by means of a quick-acting eccentric lever device (B), adjustable for exerting extreme uniform pressure to prevent the work from slipping and insuring more accurate cutting. This method permits the clamping and removing of blanks with greater rapidity than with the old crank screw method. The bed (C) on which the tail piece (D) slides, is graduated in inches and fractions of inches for quick setting of the tail piece (D) for the size circle to be cut. The angular position of cutter (E) allows for a clean cutting on the inside as on the outside of circle.

FORMING MACHINES

Slip Roll.

An Improved Forming Machine of pleasing lines, of rigid construction and very dependable for general use.

The lift type of Slip Roll Former, as these new patterns offer, leaves free the hands of the operator for feeding and removal of work.

Ample clearance is provided at left end housing for removing work when formed full length of the rolls.

Lifting of the upper roll is effected through a lever on right end of machine always in easy reach of operator and locks automatically with the roll in tilted position. Simple and very easy to operate.

The rolls need not be stopped when operating the lifting device, a desirable feature especially when arranged power drive, an improvement that merits consideration. Rolls are high carbon steel, smoothly finished and ground.

Strength is assured through a patented hinged cap fitted to the right end housing which clamps in one motion and when clamped, it serves as a desirable support making a fully enclosed housing for the upper roll

The compensating gears are solid steel machine cut always remaining in mesh and are fully enclosed. This permits for ample adjustment of lower roll for clearance so as not to cause the closing of locks previously formed on sheets. Positively no binding of gears while machine is run with upper roll clamped or in tilted position.

Housings are rigidly mounted on steel base. Rolls are ground and smoothly finished and are provided with a series of grooves for forming work that has been previously wired.

External grease cups are provided for idler gears in the gear case.

Specify Pexto lift type Lightning Slip Roll Former to insure the installation of a Forming Machine to correct design and principle.

The Elsinore Design

Sterling Silver—Gray Finish

A Sterling Silver in the Danish Mode. Silver design takes a Danish trend and from the far-off shores of Denmark comes the inspiration for the Elsinore, newest of Sterling Silver Services—a design of reposeful harmony and blending beauty.

Named for Hamlet's historical castle, on the waters of the Oresund, Elsinore follows the age-old principles of pure design, and with them commingles a touch of present day feeling, giving to the flatware and matching hollow ware, unusual grace of line and beauty of proportion.

Balance—Weight—Finish and Construction are things that, in addition to Design, influence the choice of a silver flatware pattern.

Elsinore enjoys perfection in each and offers, in addition to the regular dessert knife and fork and in place of the usual dinner knife and fork, the practical and modish Viande knife and fork, about which so many smart hostesses are wildly enthusiastic.

DELLA ROBBIA

GRAY FINISH HANDLES BRIGHT BOWLS AND TINES.

IN this Alvin translation of the art of Della Robbia, one finds a sincerity and strict adherence to the line, with a strength of detail as powerful as the master's touch. This Alvin re-creation, because of its sheer beauty, and the period charm bequeathed by DELLA ROBBIA, makes happy those who see romance in the old. And to those who seek an uncommon loveliness to endure through the passing years, here is DELLA ROBBIA.

MODERN AMERICAN STERLING

Here is one of the very loveliest of the new patterns. Its simple graceful lines are refreshingly beautiful — and very smart are its slender handles and the conventional petal-motif tip. A most delightful interpretation of the modern mode.

See those beautiful life-like rubber arms with every finger clear and distinct; watch her clasp her hands and say her prayers. Her composition legs are natural and dimpled as a real baby's legs should be; and she is just as "cuddly" as her name, for she is stuffed with the lightest, fluffiest kapok. A real "princess" among dolls!

LAWN MOWERS

HORSE POWER

Crestlawn.

Pony Style.

The construction of this machine is positively the very best on the market and is as near perfect as can be made. The parts making the frame are all lathe turned and the cast bed plate is machined into the side plates, forming an automatic interlocking adjustment which cannot be jarred or twisted out of alignment.

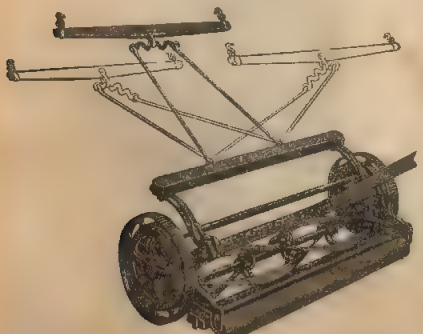
Pony mowers are often used by hand power and the Crestlawn is particularly good for this purpose, as it has ball bearing drive wheels. This makes the machine easy running and very little harder to operate than many hand machines.

The reel is made with four revolving knives of finest crucible steel, oil tempered, self-sharpening and is ball bearing. The ball bearing parts are self-adjusting and never need to be touched by the operator. The reel is therefore held in position under all conditions and will give a clean shear cut at all times

The steel bed knife is made with an upturned lip which adds strength and rigidity.

Each mower is equipped with a patented horse attachment. This can be adjusted quickly and in such a manner that in operation the mower is held to the ground and the disagreeable tipping up of the rear of the machine, which is a serious objection to many mowers, is impossible with the Crestlawn. The draft of the mower is just the same as when operated with the handle.

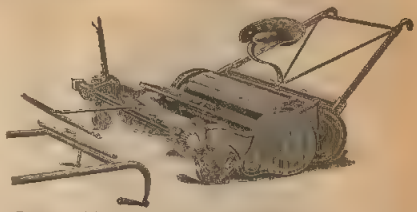
The attachment affords another great advantage which is shown in the illustration—that of the horse walking in the middle front or to either side of the mower, at the will of the driver, and yet maintaining at all times an equal and central draft. Thus the uncut grass need not be tramped down.



No. 30C—Drive wheels, 11 inches high; width of cut, 30 inches; diameter of reel, 6 inches; reel axle, ¾ inch; double riveted malleable reel braces; beautifully finished in light green and gold bronzes with red decorations. Shipping weight, 180 pounds. Each $75.00

One in a crate

FENDEN HORSE MOWER



Guaranteed to give the best of satisfaction. The frame construction is the strongest that is possible to build and is reinforced at each end with heavy steel bars. All parts accurately machined and fitted. Both the bottom knife and the reel are demountable without disturbing the frame of the mower. Reel bearings turn in adjustable split brass bushings Fitted with a train of three gears and durable triple pawl ratches. Diameter of drive rollers, 15 inches. Reel is 8 inches in diameter and is quickly adjusted to the stationary or bottom knife. Fully equipped with driver's seat, shafts and side draft attachments. Width of cut 35 inches.

The Fenden Horse Mower—Weight, each, complete 930 pounds. Each $370.00

TORO

"SOD-KUT" is a hand power tool and can be taken on to putting greens, fairways, nurseries or lawn without the slightest damage to turf. No horses or tractors used, yet two men can cut 15,000 square feet of sod a day, of uniform thickness, regardless of contour of ground.

"SOD-KUT" produces a strip 13½ inches wide of any length desired and these strips of perfectly uniform thickness are smoothly rolled and easily transported. Thickness can be adjusted to any depth from ¾ inch to 2¼ inches. Shaving, cutting, smoothing and trimming troubles are entirely eliminated as sod produced with "SOD-KUT" is ready to use just as it is cut. Requires no sacks of sand or weights to keep cutter in the ground. The pull of the cutter blade against the twin rollers holds it to the absolutely uniform thickness it is set to cut.

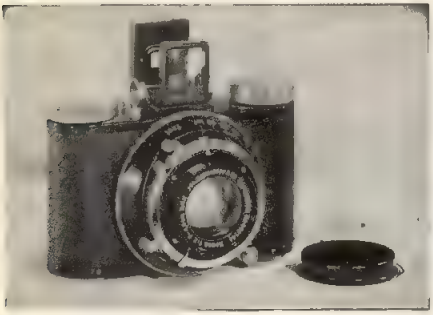
CONTINENTAL KODAKS . . . Germany's Finest Precision Cameras



Kodak Pupille

Kodak Vollenda with f. 4.5 Lens

Kodak Vollenda with f. 3.5 Lens

Kodak Recomar 33

CONTINENTAL KODAKS

Continental Kodaks are built in the Stuttgart, Germany plant of the Eastman Kodak Company, under the supervision of Dr. August Nagel, Europe's leading camera designer. They bring you the versatility, precise construction, and fine finish that have always characterised all Nagel models . . . Germany's finest precision cameras.

KODAK PUPILLE

The Pupille, a fine miniature camera, makes 16 pictures, 1⅝x1⅛ inches, on a roll of "vest pocket" (No. 127) Kodak Film. Superlative quality in the pictures is assured by a highly corrected and extremely fast lens . . . an anastigmat with the rating of f. 2. Possessing fully five times the speed of an f. 4.5 anastigmat, it makes the user practically independent of light conditions, and gives him critically sharp negatives that may be generously enlarged whenever desired. Supporting the f. 2 lens is the Compur shutter, with a range from 1 to 1/300 second, besides bulb and time. The higher speeds enable users of this Kodak to stop almost any kind of fast action.

On the tiny Pupille, camera extension is obtained, not by the bellows, but by a precision-cut spiral mount. This gives sufficient extension for sharp focus as close as 2½ feet from the subject, without an auxiliary lens. A revolving scale shows the depth of focus obtainable at any distance with various lens openings. Other features are a detachable, periscopic range finder, direct-view finder, two color filters, brown cowhide carrying case, camera foot to support camera in horizontal position, tripod socket for vertical position. Overall size, 3⅝x2⅝x2 inches. Finish, black morocco leather.

KODAK VOLLENDA

Makes 16 pictures, 1⅝x1⅛ inches, on a roll of "vest pocket" (No. 127) Kodak Film. A fine miniature camera of the European type, combining photographic ability of high caliber with ingenious construction, yet selling at moderate prices. At the top of the camera is a little button. Press it and the camera springs open, the bellows extends, lens and shutter snap rapidly into position. Almost before the eye can follow the motion, the Vollenda is in ready for action. Both lenses available are fast, brilliantly performing anastigmats. On the f. 4.5 model the lens is combined with the Pronto shutter, with its accurate speed adjustments and ingenious built-in self timer (enabling the photographer to get into the picture himself). The f. 3.5 model carries the Compur shutter, with eight indicated speeds up to 1/300 second, plus intermediate speeds up to 1/100 second. This equipment assures excellent pictures under widely varying conditions—pictures capable of enlargement to any reasonable size. Details: closely fitting, hinged back; pin-grain morocco leather covering, trimmed with black metal edging; dimensions (closed) 4¼x3⅛x1¾ inches; focusing, from 2½ feet to infinity, by revolving lens mount; tripod socket for vertical views; cable and finger releases; eye-level, direct-view finder; depth-of-focus scale on f. 3.5 model.

HELLER HARDWARE STORE EQUIPMENT

STORE LADDERS

Heller's Bent-side, Rolling ladders are extremely satisfactory, not alone with Heller Hardware store equipment, but with any equipment. Thousands are in use at the present time.

The sides and treads are of wood, strengthened by steel rods passing through sides of ladder under treads. It is exceedingly easy to reach the surplus stock from this type of ladder, because it is especially designed for safety and speed in ascending and descending. The top fixtures are self-adjusting with a perfect bearing on the steel track, allowing the ladder to run easily over uneven places in the floor. Ladder can be placed close to shelving when not in use, thus taking up little aisle space. Track consists of steel tubing to be attached to top of cabinets, or to the face of uprights or face of shevles. No floor track is necessary. The two large floor wheels are rubber tired, making the ladder practically noiseless.

LADDER No. 999

Size 7 feet 1½ inches high, to be used in connection with regular base cabinets and top cabinets 52½ inches high.

LADDER No. 998

Are you satisfied with your system of carrying drills, reamers and kindred hardware? There is real profit in this class of merchandise if handled properly. When the stock arrives, each item should be put away in a place designed for it so as to be found conveniently when called for.

Heller's Drill Cabinet provides just such a place to carry your entire stock of drills, etc.

This cabinet measures 29⅞ inches wide, 42½ inches high and 13½ inches deep, outside measurements. It has a painted steel back. The front exposures, top and sides are of Oak, finely finished in a rich antique varnish.

The cabinet contains 41 Heller patent steel drawers, each fitted with card frame and strong pull. The drawers are of five different widths and three heights. Each is supplied with special divisions for the express purpose of taking care of Twist Drills. There are 223 compartments in all in the cabinet. The size of these compartments may be increased by simply removing cross divisions.

When the smaller sizes of drills, etc., are not carried in stock, the first few drawers can be utilized for other items. If the larger drills are not carried, the larger drawers would then be available for other items such as reamers, cap screws, set screws, etc.

This cabinet, if desired, may be inserted in Heller's Hardware Shelving. It is an excellent, practical piece of equipment and a time and money-saver.

Honeysuckle marks the very last word in Dolls—the supreme achievement of the combined genius and efforts of Sculptor, Scientist and Artisan.

The head, of unbreakable composition, duplicates most faithfully the charm of the chubby-cheeked, dimpled, round-eyed infant. The Body and Limbs are molded from an exclusive Rubber composition, which simulates perfectly the natural texture, softness and color of human flesh. Honeysuckle sleeps, rolls its eyes, cries when you squeeze its legs, holds its head, arms and legs in any position, is remarkably light in weight, and can be washed with soap and water. Every curve, crease, fold and dimple, every finger and toe, is reproduced with the utmost fidelity, all combining to form a doll of infinite charm and loveliness. Honeysuckle is unquestionably slated to be the Biggest Doll Hit in history! Packed each in box. Made in 5 sizes.

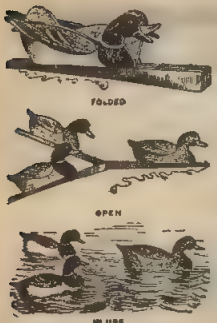
FOLDING DUCK DECOYS

Illinois River Folding.



Illinois River Folding Duck Decoys are made of wood painted in natural colors on both sides and attached to a wooden float in groups of three. The float is in three pieces and joined at one end with a three-plate hinge so that when extended a bird floats at each extremity. The float sinks below the surface of the water presenting merely the decoys which show up from any angle. They are compact and light in weight and buoyancy is not affected by stray shots. Only one cord and anchor is needed for each group of three decoys. One dozen (8 males, 4 females), including cords and anchors, in a strong carry box.

HAMMOND Bichronous ELECTRIC CLOCKS

The Hammond Bichronous Electric Clock has overcome the one objection to the synchronous electric clock. It continues to tell time regardless of current interruptions. Of course, it retains all the advantages of the synchronous clock—perfect accuracy with freedom from winding, regulating, oiling or other care.

The Bichronous movement is in reality two movements in one. It is a synchronous clock while the current is on, but in addition it is a clock that continues to run and tell correct time when the current is off. All models have sweep second hand. For use on alternating current only. Regularly furnished for 110 to 120 volts, 60 cycles.

ELECTRIC FIXTURES

LUSTROLIERS

PREEMINENT IN BEAUTY -:- PARAMOUNT IN EFFICIENCY

Lustrolier is the outstanding development in lighting fixtures of the past decade, combining unusual beauty with the visual comfort of indirect illumination. It permits indirect illumination to become the most decorative as well as the most efficient form of lighting.

Equipped with a specially designed Pittsburgh Permaflector which distributes the light broadly over the ceiling, producing a soft, well diffused illumination, free from objectionable glare and bothersome shadows. Without any change in the illumination of the room the exterior surface of Lustrolier is vividly illuminated in white or color, by reflected light which has been transmitted through the clear bottom of the Permaflector.

Lustrolier creates a vivid illusion of illuminated white or colored iridescent glass and may be blended into any decorative scheme. Unlike the ordinary luminous glass bowl fixture, however, the color of Lustrolier may be changed from time to time, by merely inserting a new color roundel. In this manner, Lustrolier provides refreshing variety—the complete aspect of the room can be changed without affecting the general lighting in any way.

ELECTRIC FIXTURES

PERMAFLECTOR LUMINAIRES

Permaflector Luminaires are designed primarily for commercial service, such as lighting of stores and offices and for other service where highly decorative fixtures are not required, as for schools, barber shops, manufacturing operations, etc.

("B" TYPE, TOTALLY INDIRECT)

The distribution of the light over the ceiling is extremely broad and adequately covers an 18-foot bay from a single central unit with 30-inch suspension

The field of light is beautifully uniform; shadows from supporting arms are absent; there is no sharp cutoff to the field of light, rather a gradual fading away.

These unusual results are achieved by means of Permaflectors designed specifically for this purpose. The interior of the reflector is smooth glass and is easy to keep clean—a most important feature. Any one of the supporting arms may be disconnected, allowing the bowl to hang from the other two arms, for quick cleaning of the Permaflector, which cannot drop out

SAWS AND FRAMES

STEEL BOW FRAMES

Sandvik

Adjustable and non-adjustable. These are the best and most practical steel bow frames ever devised. Made from oval shaped special quality cold drawn and heat treated seamless steel tubing. The oval shape allows for a better grip than on the old style round tube frame. In fact, it fits into the hand like an axe handle. Adjustable frames, in addition to being suitable for various length of blades, may be taken apart and easily carried in the knap-sacks. If properly taken care of the Sanvik frames will last for years. The tightner lays inside the frame, making surface entirely smooth. When changing blades, just release the lock on top of frame, open tightner downwards, insert saw and pull frame apart to obtain suitable tension. There are no pins or screws to get lost, no tools needed for adjusting.

Table designs may come and go, but the quaint little dropleaf gateleg, like Tennyson's brook, goes on forever in smart good fashion. The choice of a gateleg table is always in good taste, and the one above is especially entrancing. Its top has the beauty of rich figured butt walnut veneers enhanced by a banded edge of burl maple. It is sturdily constructed, too. One reason the gateleg style of table lasts so long is the fact that its many legs and stretchers give it greater endurance for long wear. The top closed is 24x30 inches; open, 30x52 inches; height, 28 inches. Weight, 30 lbs.

No. 39F127. Each $20.40

Drop Leaf Table. In this remarkable table creation lie unlimited decorative possibilities. It will bring a touch of beauty to any part of the room. Indeed it needs no further touches, no vases of flowers, not even a scarf to set it off. Those extra bits of decoration are superfluous for the very reason that the unusual and richly carved border of about 2½ inches on the top take the place of additional decorative touches. This table is Flemish in character and is made entirely of solid walnut. The carved motif of the top is also carried in the stretcher. A velvety smooth walnut finish brings out the beauty of the wood. Height, 25 inches; top open, 36½x29 inches; closed, 12x36½ inches; weight, 40 lbs.

*DUMB WAITERS

SEDGWICK

Owing to the increasing demand for dumb waiters, we have selected the Sedgwick. The well-known superiority of the Sedgwick dumb waiters is due both to the carefully selected high-grade material used exclusively in their manufacture and to improvements—many of them patented—in principle design, workmanship and finish.

Dumb Waiter Cars.

The Sedgwick dumb waiter cars are made of selected ash lumber, seasoned for three years under sheds in the open air, and kiln dried before working.

The cars furnished with Sedgwick automatic brake outfits and Sedgwick band brake outfits are handsomely finished, the wood being first filled and then varnished two coats of best varnish.

Dumb waiter cars fitted with one hinged shelf are For the No 1 size, 30 inches high inside, for the Nos 2, 3, and 4 sizes, 36 inches high inside. Dumb waiter cars fitted with two solid shelves are regularly 6 inches higher.

The outside or over-all height of dumb waiter cars is about 6 inches greater than the inside height given in the above paragraph.

IVER JOHNSON

SINGLE SHOT—BOLT ACTION

Self Cocking—One of the outstanding developments in the Iver Johnson Model 2-X is in the time-saving operation of automatic self cocking, just as the name implies. This one feature in itself puts it in a position as far ahead of other rifles.

Automatic Safety—The Safety is automatically set when the bolt is pushed down in the slot. This is an exclusive Iver Johnson feature of the utmost simplicity, and in combination with the self cocking device, accomplishes in reality both the cocking and setting on safe by but one operation. Now compare this with other rifles where it is necessary to first place the cartridge in position; then cock it by hand, and still another operation of pulling back the hammer and turning it to go into a slot for safety. With the Iver Johnson Model 2-X all this is accomplished with the one simple motion of the hand.

Proof-Tested and Then Targeted—After being assembled, each rifle is proof-tested with 10% overloaded High Velocity Cartridges, and then stamped with our proof mark. This test is made in order to insure a wide margin of safety. Before packing, the rifle is carefully targeted by an expert and the sights properly adjusted for accuracy. Genuine Walnut Stock.

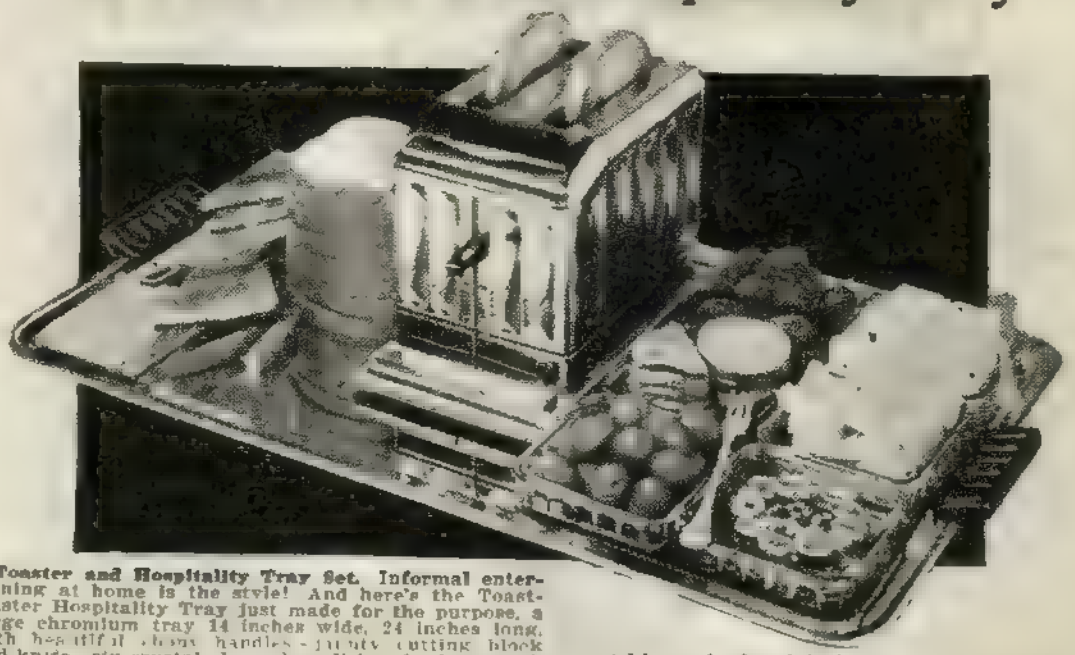
Toastmasters with Hospitality Tray



Toaster and Hospitality Tray Set. Informal entertaining at home is the style! And here's the Toastmaster Hospitality Tray just made for the purpose, a large chromium tray 14 inches wide, 24 inches long, with beautiful ebony handles—juicy cutting block and knife—six crystal clear glass dishes for butter, cheese, pickles and other dainties—and the new FLEXIBLE CLOCK Toastmaster itself—combined in one complete hospitality unit.

The New Flexible Clock Toastmaster. In the new model Toastmaster, the manufacturers have succeeded not only in simplifying the toaster considerably, but have wonderfully improved and modernized the design in its outward appearance.

It is practically noiseless in operation, a result achieved by the most refined workmanship on the mechanism.

To operate it you simply place the slice of bread in the oven slot, press down one lever and leave it alone. The automatic mechanism does the rest. In a minute a perfect piece of toast pops up and the current is turned off automatically.

Chromium plated, fully guaranteed. Toaster can be purchased without the tray.

THE NEW WAFFLEMASTER

Completely automatic. Makes waffles entirely without the use of grease.

Its automatic mechanism contains the well-known Toastmaster features including a positive mechanical control which cuts down the current and stops the baking automatically, producing uniform waffles.

After the waffle is removed, low heat continues to keep the grids sufficiently warm so that the next waffle can be baked at any time and a uniform waffle will result.

The grids have been designed to insure thorough baking clear through, giving a crisp light waffle rather than a thick waffle, which is inclined to be soggy and indigestible.

A removable easily cleanable ring about ⅝ of an inch wide rests around the lower grid to catch overflow of batter.

The Wafflemaster is finished with the finest chromium plate.

It makes 7-inch round waffles, and weighs 7½ lbs., is 4½ inches high, consumes 800 watts on high baking heat, and 165 watts on low.

Vacuum and Lever Type Fountain Pens

AT LAST!

A Pen That Tells You When to Refill.

To further increase the efficiency of this vacuum type fountain pen, we have had stamped on the barrel its exact capacity of ink, in varying degrees. We have also determined when it is absolutely necessary to refill this pen, so that it gives perfect satisfaction at all times, and have stamped on the barrel the word "Refill". When the ink in the holder reaches this level, it is time to put in a new supply. A simple little feature, but one, which will help you sell pens if it is explained properly to the ultimate consumer.

This pen is made of unbreakable material in an assortment of pearl colors. The barrels are all transparent to show ink content. They are fitted with solid 14K gold iridium tipped pen points. New style ball end clip and filigree band further enhance the beauty of this pen, which is styled in the new decagon (ten-sided) shape. They are mounted one dozen assorted colors on a very attractive display card.

By Emil Lengyel

THE Hungarian Third Reich began in the late summer of 1919, after the death of the short-lived Bolshevist régime of Bela Kun. While the Communists were in flight, the White Terror gripped the land and gave Hungary a foretaste of what Hitlerism would do to Germany. It may be therefore of some use to compare the German and Hungarian scenes, as similar premises may produce similar consequences.

In the first days of August, 1919, Stephen Friedrich, an obscure manufacturer, seized the Government by appointing himself Prime Minister and nominating Archduke Joseph Governor of Hungary. His followers worked up an anti-Semitic sentiment and tried to plunge the country into a racial warfare by making the Jews responsible for the late Bolshevist rule. On a hot afternoon, when nerves were on edge, they made an attempt at street pogroms in Budapest. At the universities, liberal minded professors were ejected and students were beaten up. The "Awakening Hungarians," whose slogans anticipated the Hitlerite motto, "Germany Awake!" went into action.

Hungarian Socialists and pacifists were put in internment camps. Political murders were committed, but the Hungarian Government refused responsibility for them, attributing them to "irresponsible elements." Foreign investigators reported organized atrocities. Pessimists placed the number of the victims of the White Terror at 5,000, while friends of the Government were willing to admit only one-tenth of that figure. The bulk of the murders took place between the Danube and Tisza rivers, and the largest number of mutilated bodies was found in the forest of Orgovány, near the city of Kecskemét.

Hungary crashed the gates of world publicity, and the Socialist Second International adopted measures of boycott against her. They were, however, of little use and the Nationalistic Government of Budapest, in harmony with the "Awakening Hungarians," enacted several decrees to which the legislative work of the Hitler Cabinet shows a striking resemblance.

Public offices and the corps of army officers were purged of Jews, and their number at the universities was restricted to their proportion in the population. Jewish students left the country by the thousand, seeking admission to foreign universities. Government monopolies and special trade licenses were withdrawn from Jews. Nearly all the measures of the previous republican administration were repealed, and Hungary was proclaimed a kingdom, altho she had no king. The Government went into battle under the banner of Christian Nationalism. The leaders promised happiness and prosperity to all, except the Jew, the Radical, and the Pacifist. They held out the hope that Hungary, cut into pieces at the Peace Conference, would regain her lost territories and would stretch from the Carpathian Mountains to the Adriatic Sea. Theirs was the Hungarian Third Reich, a Land of Promise, inhabited by the descendants of Arpád the Conqueror.

The Government made haste to announce its program of social and national awakening. The wicked gaiety of Budapest was to be replaced by the austerity of nationalistic Puritans. New churches were being built all over the land. The landless peasants were to receive a piece of property. The Army regained its pre-armistice standing, and the clicking of heels drowned out the gypsy music. Youth was to show the way to the country of a virile and defiant race; the young people of Hungary were organized in "levente" groups, a semi-military formation. Anti-Semitism was to be the guiding thought of the national awakening, and the song of the Jew-eaters, "Erger, Berger, Schossberger," became the unofficial march of the National Army.

The similarity between Hungary fifteen years ago and Germany to-day is even more striking in their attitude toward the rest of the world. In Hungary public opinion was so aroused against the Treaty of Trianon that it became an obsession, and Irredentism was the principal spiritual product of the land. School-children were taught the pre-armistice boundaries of Hungary, and the national prayer challenged the enemy to break the national defiance.

The Hungarian Third Reich, however, showed also some dissimilarities from the German Third Reich. Hungarian anti-Semitism has never been so much a racial as a religious issue, and converted Jews were treated with more consideration. The anti-Semitic program of Budapest was less thorough than that of Berlin. Jews have not been deprived of their civic rights, and as a conciliatory gesture to foreign opinion a Jewish Minister was included in one of the first Hungarian nationalistic governments.

What has become of Hungary's national awakening after a trial period of nearly fifteen years? Has the new régime succeeded in leading the Magyars to the Land of Promise? These questions are particularly pertinent at the present time, in view of the fact that the head of the Hungarian Government was at one time an ally of Adolf Hitler.

General Julius Gömbös, Prime Minister of Hungary, is only forty-six years of age. When he began his political career shortly after the armistice he was in his earliest thirties, a tempestuous youth with an uncompromising temperament, incensed at what seemed to him the unjustifiably slow action of the Government in transforming Hungary into a haven of Aryan heroes. Ten years ago he was suspected of pulling the strings of an ultra-reactionary revolution, such as Adolf Hitler was just then plotting in Bavaria. The strong-arm men of Julius Gömbös were seen to be conspiring with Hitler's lieutenants, and the result of their work was a "Preliminary Agreement between the Bavarian and Hungarian States toward a United Political and Military Action." Hitler staged his coup which was drowned in universal laughter, and came to be known as the ludicrous beer-hall putsch. Both Hitler and Gömbös disappeared for some time from the political bull-ring, and to-day both are the responsible leaders of their countries. Is General Gömbös still sold to the idea of National Socialism?

It is strange to say that just the contrary

Hungary's Experiment With Hitlerism

seems to be the case. Not long ago General Gömbös's Cabinet issued an order for the suppression of the Hungarian National Socialist Party. To-day the Nazis are outlawed in the land of the Magyars. From this the conclusion is justified that Hungary's experiment with National Socialism was so unsuccessful that its very name is distasteful. This conclusion is confirmed by the outward appearance of the capitals of the two countries, Berlin and Budapest. The religious austerity of the Hungarian metropolis has given place to its congenital gaiety. Once more the Jewish population of the city occupies the place it had before the nationalistic régime. The most flagrant manifestations of intolerance have been banished, but the new era of milk and honey, the Hungarian Third Reich, has failed to materialize.

The Hungarian super-nationalist régime was signally unsuccessful in its efforts to improve the condition of the peasant. The country is potentially rich, but land is unequally distributed, more than one-half of all rural estates being concentrated in the hands of less than a thousand landowners, and the rest scattered among millions of peasants. At the end of the World War about 1,500,000 farmers had either no land or too small parcels to make a living on them. The Government's intention was to execute an agrarian reform by turning over a part of the large estates to the country proletariat. The reform, however, was wholly inadequate, as it failed to correct the results of unequal distribution. Only about a million acres were parceled out among the landless, and much of that land was too poor for profitable cultivation. Moreover, the authorities failed to provide the new owners with agricultural implements, so that most of them are to-day as badly off as they were at the start.

So desperate has the peasants' plight become recently that the Government had to permit them to pay their tax arrears in wheat and rye, and it also decreed a farmers' moratorium. In order to enable the population of the "Alföld," the great Hungarian plainland, to tide over the worst times, the Cabinet devised a system of debentures, which was an anticipation of a similar plan later suggested in the United States. According to this plan, the peasants have for years received an export grain premium, the so-called "boletta," which amounts now to about seventy-five cents per quintal. The boletta is paid out of a special tax on the flour consumption of the cities, to which is added a Government contribution. For the payment of this premium in the current year the Cabinet appropriated nearly twenty million dollars. It is only fair to add that the system is so unpopular all over Hungary that the Government will probably discontinue it next year. The unfavorable monetary situation has made it incumbent on the Government to decree a transfer moratorium on all foreign debts.

It is obvious, then, that the economic results of the Hungarian Third Reich are unsatisfactory.

America Cries "Play Ball" in a Recovery Season

Major League Baseball Gets Under Way Next Week as Leading Sports Writers Pick the Pennant Winners of 1934 Through The Literary Digest Poll

A MAJOR league umpire first shouts "Play ball" in the 1934 season when the Boston Red Sox play down in Washington next Monday, April 16. But the American National Sport actually got under way some four months ago, back in December, when Connie Mack went over the hill with the Philadelphia Athletics and sold the backbone of his club. For once, colorful Babe Ruth made but few pre-season headlines. But baseball did write more headlines when a uniform ball was adopted for the major leagues. If this last move was designed to make the game more spectacular for the fans, certainly the fans have responded nobly—it is predicted that nothing will reflect the progress of the Recovery Program and the NRA so much as baseball attendance this year. And certainly the interest evidenced by the fans during the burlesque baseball period allotted to spring training would seem to bear out these predictions.

On the first of the season's headlines—the break-up of the Athletics—Joe Vila, sports editor of the New York Sun, commented:

"Evidently Connie Mack is not entitled to the loads of sympathy extended to him by thousands of followers who have been wondering what kind of a baseball 'wreck' he will start in the American League race on April 17. Suspicion is growing that Mack, who has spent more than fifty years in professional baseball and knows all the angles, has disposed of fading stars whose places will be capably filled by youngsters now developing rapidly."

The wealthy young owner of the Boston Red Sox, Thomas Yawkey, paid a small fortune for pitchers Grove and Walberg, and second-baseman Bishop—thirty-four year-old Grove has developed an early season lame arm, and there are a lot of baseball men that believe that Bishop and Walberg are on the down grade. Chicago White Sox owner Louis Comiskey bought pitcher George Earnshaw in the Athletic auction—Comiskey was not too pleased with Earnshaw's erratic pitching in spring training games. And as the spring training drew to a close, catcher-manager Cochrane, who cost the Detroit Tigers $100,000, went to the hospital with appendicitis symptoms to add further weight to the argument that Connie Mack still knows baseball.

This has been the first of many preludes to the baseball season that has not seen the game's most colorful figure, Babe Ruth, battling Col. Jacob Ruppert for more salary. Ruth began his climb back in 1920 at $20,000, reached a peak of fame and salary in 1930 at $80,000, and now he is back down around where he started, at $35,000, and they say he is through. John Kieran, writing in the New York Times, recalled some of the high spots in the rise and fall of that "noblest Roman of them all": "In 1920, hitting 54 home runs, the first time any player had come close to the fifty-mark; in 1927, sixty homers in a season to set what still stands as an all-time major league record; 1928, three home runs in one world series game, repeating the feat of 1926 against the Cardinals in St. Louis."

This spring, Ruth drove one out over the fringe of Australian pine trees that border the training camp field down in Florida, and he smiled at the handwriting on the wall: "That one really traveled," he said. "It's been two years since I hit one in that neighborhood. It must be the new ball. Last year I couldn't have carried those trees with a rifle."

That set the experts to thunking; several of them are back on the bandwagon, rooting for a comeback. Commented Richards Vidmer in the New York Herald Tribune:

"Babe Ruth, at the age of forty, has clearly proven that he will be more of an asset than a liability this spring and summer. There was some question about this when the training siege got under way, for the celebrated slugger admitted himself that this would be his last active year and some wondered if the action would be visible to the naked eye. But the Babe put all such thoughts to rest by batting .429 in thirteen games and hitting half a dozen home runs. He led the team in batting and runs driven in and when a man can do that his footwork becomes a secondary consideration."

Jimmy Foxx, Connie Mack's last stand on the Athletics, predicted that "this looks like my year to finally shatter that sixty-home-run-record of Babe Ruth's," but he won't do it without some competition from the man that set that record, even tho this has already proved a bad year for comebacks.

In a year that will see another America's Cup defender built, a polo team sent to England, and a Rugby team brought from England, it is well to note that baseball has not lagged in its rôle as the National Sport. In the American League, Thomas A. Yawkey bought the Boston Red Sox franchise last year for $1,000,000, and since the initial cost his budget has included

Analysis Reveals that Criticism of Army Air-Mail Stepped Beyond Limits of Fairness, Tho Some Adjustments in Highly Specialized Training and Equipment Were Necessary

IT is proposed here to discuss with the necessary brevity a few of the questions raised by the Army's operation of the air-mail, and in doing so to keep in mind the very excellent example set by Will Rogers. Those who heard Mr. Rogers's discourse on the subject over the radio some days ago will recall that he prepared for it by gathering in person the opinions of the principals in the controversy, including the President, Colonel Lindbergh, Postmaster-General Farley, former Postmaster-General Brown, Senator Black and Major-General Foulois. He talked also with some of the Army pilots. But he wound up by saying that "after listening to all hands I didn't know any more than I did before."

One may not duplicate his preparation but it is possible to imitate his modesty.

However, the main point at issue is no longer the one which was uppermost in Mr. Rogers's thoughts. He was concerned chiefly with the Administration's justification for suddenly cancelling the air-mail contracts. In the meantime far more dramatic material for debate has been furnished by the fatal crashes of Army pilots—six of them within the first week of their new detail. Compassion for the commercial air-lines has shifted to pity for the Army and the charge against the President, most of it political, from unfair play to "legalized murder." Had he the moral right, his opponents have been asking with a note of hysteria in their voices, to dump the dangerous job of flying the mails into the lap of a service untrained for it?

Any honest answer requires at the outset the calm consideration of a few facts. First among them comes the state of the weather. That first week, unfortunately, broke all previous records for rotten flying conditions. If Army flyers crashed, so it must be remembered did a seasoned mail pilot with a plane load of passengers.

The ill-fated Anderson had had 7,000 hours' experience. His was a cabin liner of a strictly up-to-date model equipped with every device for blind flying. Presumably he knew that route between Salt Lake City and Cheyenne inch by inch. Yet the storm devils got him as surely as if he had been riding a bomber in an open cockpit with no knowledge of the terrain.

It should be remembered, too, that of the six Army pilots killed in that ghastly week only one was actually carrying mail at the time. Two on the list were on their way to report for mail duty. A third was engaged in a practise flight. Another was washed overboard from an amphibian swamped off Long Island, and still another, off duty, came to grief in Texas while flying a new type pursuit plane. To blame all these accidents on the transfer of the mail service may have been natural in the initial excitement of the controversy but, as General Foulois has complained, it overstepped justice.

Official Photograph, U. S. Army Air Corps

Bombers flying in formation over Death Valley

General Foulois expressed the belief that "accidents have not been excessive." To a large extent he is confirmed by the record, which shows that in its ordinary routine the Army Air Corps has always courted death. Here are the figures for ten years: 1923, fifty-eight killed; 1924, thirty-four; 1925, thirty-eight; 1926, forty-two; 1927, forty-three; 1928, twenty-seven; 1929, sixty-one; 1930, fifty-two; 1931, twenty-six; 1932, fifty.

It seems to be true, nevertheless, that in taking over the air-mail the Army has had to improvise a service for which it was not too well adapted either in pilot personnel or equipment. Maj. Clarence L. Tinker, commander of the Western Division of the Army's air-mail effort, has called it an "almost impossible task." He and others familiar with the problem, including Senator Hiram Bingham, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and less known pilots, military and civilian, have been at pains to point out the many reasons which disqualify the Army flyer as a mail carrier and equally the mail carrier as an Army flyer. To a public prone to lump all aviators and air-planes in the same semi-miraculous category their testimony is worth study.

It may be epitomized under two obvious headings:

(1) Training — The Army pilot is trained to fly in formation, to execute difficult combat maneuvers, to bomb visible targets, to pursue and attack. He can have no set course in warfare, no radio beams to guide him through a fog or a storm, no beacons to light his way at night. The safety first principle of the air-mail bird is out of his line and so also the dependence on the highly developed devices which reduce the hazards of commercial flight.

The best analogy between the two forms of aviation was that drawn by an Army pilot for Sherman B. Altick, of the New York Sun. This pilot had just landed at Newark Airport after a round trip with the air-mail across the treacherous Alleghenies. He felt like a hockey player turned into a straight-away skater. "A good hockey player glides along on the ice automatically as he watches the puck and a military flyer has his mind on half a dozen things—observation, gunning, bombing, or photography." In other words flying, to the military airman, is as incidental to his object as skating is to the hockey player.

(2) Equipment—"We are using (for air-mail purposes)," explained this pilot, "observation, bombing and a few pursuit planes for the light loads." Almost all of them, of course, are open cockpit planes. Half of them, when mobilized for mail service, had no radio sets. The others were equipped with sets of limited range adequate for military purposes but not for blind flying between distant points. This particular defect is being remedied.

Here, then, are some of the handicaps from which both the Army and the air-mail under its operation seem bound to suffer for a while. If they have borne tragic fruit in a few instances it is not the Army that is counting the cost. On the contrary, the Army has accepted the challenge of its new job with an alacrity only astonishing to those who have forgotten, or have never understood, its traditional mettle. With this spirit there can be little doubt that soon it will overcome the obstacles to a complete performance and at the same time teach the country a valuable lesson—namely, that the Air Corps deserves a better all-round training and the facilities to promote it.

Beebe To Attempt Record Deep-Sea Exploration

Scientist, Already Credited With Greatest Descent Below Surface of the Ocean, Will Try in July for Half-Mile Depth in a Two-Ton Steel Sphere

By S. R. Winters

IMPRISONED in a steel shell, four and one-half feet in diameter and weighing two tons, Dr. William Beebe, in July of this year, is to attempt a diving expedition to a depth of one-half mile. Third of a series of deep-sea explorations, the peril of such an undertaking is apparent when one realizes that if the tons of pressure on this steel sphere were released for only a fraction of a second this world-renowned ocean diver would be smashed to unrecognizable smithereens.

Already credited with the greatest descent of any living person below the surface of the ocean of 2,200 feet or approximately one-third of a mile, the forthcoming expedition is an effort to better his own record and acquire cumulative knowledge of the strange forms of sea life near the ocean's floor, where sunlight never penetrates. Under the sponsorship of the National Geographic Society, this summer's deep-sea investigations will operate from the same base as the previous 1930 and 1932 expeditions, namely, from the mainland near Nonsuch of the Bermuda Islands.

The "Bathysphere"

The descent of this famous oceanographic naturalist and director of the Department of Scientific Research of the New York Zoological Society is to be made in an enclosure of his own design and nomenclature. The "Bathysphere" is a coined word taking its prefix from Greek meaning deep and "sphere" being descriptive of the form of the thick-shelled two-ton diving ball. It has windows of fused quartz, built to withstand the enormous pressure exerted by tons of sea water and yet sufficiently transparent to cast beams of light into the water so that fishes and other creatures at great depths may be observed and studied.

"Next to going to Mars, there seems nothing more exciting and unpredictable," said Dr. Beebe in contemplating his next attempt to explore hitherto unexplored ocean depths. When embarking on the descent, he and his associate observer will be sealed into this sphere of steel and reeled out by hundreds of feet of seven-eighths-inch, non-twisting steel cable.

While this expedition makes Robinson Crusoe's isolation appear like nudging one's way through Broadway throngs, Dr. Beebe will have two modern conveniences—telephone and electric light. The telephone and electric wires are encased in a half-mile of solid rubber hose. Too, radio broadcasts will emanate from the ocean's bottom.

However, there is isolation from sun and air—an automatic valve furnishes a steady supply of oxygen for breathing. At the end of a four- or five-hour dive the observers will be living in an atmosphere of slightly compressed air. Chemicals in two wire racks of the "Bathysphere" take up excess moisture and carbon dioxid.

The inside of the sphere is painted black to avoid reflection and on this undersea excursion, books, writing materials, sample colors and even monkey wrenches are taken along. On a previous expedition to a fourth of a mile down, Dr. Beebe tells of misplacing the monkey wrench only to discover that he was sitting upon it.

Dr. William Beebe (right) and an assistant after a dive to a quarter-mile beneath the surface of the ocean

What a breath-taking adventure it must be to serve as telephone operator to one of these deep-sea explorations! Looking the part of a mermaid—dressed more like a bathing than a "hello" girl—the telephone operator on the surface barge sends and receives hundreds of messages from the so-called "Davy Jones's Locker" during the various dives. As the girl sits on a box, surrounded by winches, cables and telephone paraphernalia, there are moments of anxious suspense when voice communication is broken—she not knowing whether static is causing the interruption or a silence that conveys its own somber message of a one-way trip to Davy Jones's Locker.

Discovers Strange Creatures

According to Dr. Beebe, the desired quest of knowledge of deep-sea creatures is analogous to a fanciful study of African animal life, in which rats and mice have been trapped but there is absence of information on elephants, antelopes, and lions. For instances, on previous dives, Dr. Beebe discovered strange creatures which possess flashlights, as it were, in their battle for existence where sunlight never penetrates At one hundred feet, he found many surface fish; at twenty fathoms he was surprized to discover the transparent, twelve-inch body of a larval eel; at 400 feet there came into view the first deep-sea fish—lantern-fish, and bronze eels; at 500 feet a black fish two feet long; at 600 feet a pale blue fish; at 800 feet, for the first time, a human being glimpsed a living silver hatchet-fish; between 1,250 and 1,350 feet not a light or organism was discerned; and at a quarter of a mile down it appeared as only a solid blue-black world.

William Beebe was Brooklyn-born 57 years ago, tho he looks ten years younger. Tall, spare of build, he is six feet and weighs 135 pounds. Like the late Thomas A. Edison, he finds five hours' sleep sufficient and has had only three days' illness in thirty years. He has been married twice and rates marriage as our greatest institution.

His pet aversions are: Socialism, horse-radish, and the theory that men are born free and equal. He eschews card-playing and other games; occasionally plays tennis, enjoys parties, theaters and dancing and once in a while sees a motion-picture. The eminent naturalist can drive an automobile or pilot an air-plane but loathes the machinery that makes the wheels go 'round.

That he is completely engrossed in his scientific work is attested by his expressed conviction that a workless world would be hell on earth. He would cherish critical enemies as a lever to success. Perhaps characteristic of the true adventurer, the death described by Robert Louis Stevenson as sudden as that inflicted by the blow of a thug is preferred to creaking old age.

Birth of an Idea

To the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt Dr. Beebe would attribute a major share of the inspiration and influence in shaping his career as an oceanographer and deep-sea diver. With pardonable pride, he describes an evening's conference with the former President in devising ways and means of ocean exploration.

Of that memorable occasion, he has preserved fragments of paper on which he sketched a cylinder and Colonel Roosevelt a sphere as their preferences of diving equipment.

And who would refute that there and then was born the idea of the "Bathysphere," the two-ton steel ball which has withstood the surface-tested pressure of 2,350 pounds per square inch at an ocean depth of one mile? After each successful dive, Dr. Beebe with modesty replies to the inquiry, "How did it feel?", by quoting Herbert Spencer: "'I felt like an infinitesimal atom floating in illimitable space.'"

Dead Hands Control Many Trust Funds

IN Connecticut it is unlawful to set out a tub in the hope of "enticing swarms of bees" from their owners. In Delaware it is unlawful for a pedestrian to walk on a public highway after dark unless he carries a lantern or other light or has "tied upon an arm or other portion of the body, a white cloth." If a man in Michigan incites an Indian tribe to go on the warpath he is guilty of a felony. A Kansan is forbidden to eat, in public, any "snakes, lizards, scorpions, centipedes [or] tarantulas." In Pennsylvania it is unlawful to use a cannon "at any serenade of any wedding." And so on, ad infinitum.

Laws long obsolete remain on the statute books. New Jersey, however, recently eliminated 1,200 such statutes, and Congress, in one bill last year, repealed more than 1,000 old laws. The law does try to keep up with the times.

But dead hands still control many trusts and render them ineffective, as Ralph Hayes tells us in a tract published by the New York Community Trust, of which he is director. Hitching racks, for illustration, provided in a certain Indiana city, were welcome at the time the benefaction was made. But only automobiles stand in front of them now. In a small New Hampshire town, sixty-five years ago, a kindly but eccentric doctor left two trusts. As a result of one of them, the town doles out each year approximately a mile of flannel shirting. The second is for the removal of small stones from the village roads. Both trusts are being carried out. A native of Connecticut who lived in the village of Brissac in the valley of the Loire bequeathed 180,000 francs to be divided among eighteen employees on condition that each of them should for a year wear a fancy costume, taken from the American's large collection. For a year, then, the fortunate eighteen went about their work decked in the bright raiment of Spanish matadors, Hawaiian grass skirts, Scottish kilts, the flowing robes of a mandarin, or what have you.

"Tired endowments," Mr. Hayes calls these bequests. Their number, he says, is countless. "They shuffle along, unrelated to the brave efforts, the tragic setbacks, the gallant gains of the contemporary society that forms and reforms around them." Only by long and tedious processes, if at all, can these limited charities be amended and turned to actual need. It is suggested that prospective philanthropists give discretionary power to successor-trustees so that they "will not be hamstrung by inadequate authority in the presence of unanticipated circumstances." That object may be achieved through the Community Trust, founded twenty years ago by a group of bankers, lawyers and public-spirited citizens of the Middle West. It administers funds committed to it with the authority to apply the income to other objects if the preferential purposes become obsolete. It has been described as "the chief contribution of our generation to the art of wise giving."

In 1933 the New York Community Trust distributed charitable funds reaching the record total of $198,918.13, according to Mr. Hayes. The Trust, now embracing thirty-five philanthropic funds, distributed $197,149 in 1932 and upwards of $1,000,000 in the past six years. It ranks among the twenty largest foundations in the country, and the aggregate value of its resources is $7,703,600. There are funds for Indian education, Girl Scouts, Visiting Nurses, for Westchester children, for the Salvation Army, Junior Red Cross and for the United Hospital fund. In 1933 money was given for exhibiting the art work of poor Viennese children, for aiding "literary workers in the United States," for biological research, for playground areas, for medal awards, to further the arbitration of commercial disputes, "to strengthen the ties of friendship between the people of France and those of the United States."

Because of its freedom of action and supervised method of distribution, Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale terms the Trust "potentially the most significant innovation in our society."

Outposts of Ecclesiastical Empire

Part of the ecclesiastical empire of the Anglican Church lies in the Arctic region of Canada. Its affairs are administered by the Right Rev. Archibald Lang Fleming. So vast and varied are the interests of this domain—part of the ecclesiastical province of Rupert's Land—that legislation is to be sought in the Canadian Parliament to incorporate him and his successors in office as the "Bishop of the Arctic." The purpose of the proposed incorporation is to enable the incumbent of the office to hold, manage and control real and personal property, affairs and interests of the diocese in matters affecting the Anglican Church, its officers and members.

Another tremendous Anglican diocese lies in the torrid zone, and is presided over by the young Bishop of Melanesia, the Right Rev. Walter H. Baddeley. Its length is more than 2,000 miles. Only the chancel of its cathedral at Siota, on the British Solomon Islands, has been completed. Native craftsmen have decorated the interior with mother-of-pearl.

Melanesia is the collective name for the island groups in the Pacific comprising New Britain, Solomon, Santa Cruz, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, Loyalty, and other archipelagoes. Eventually the church in Melanesia is to be staffed entirely by native clergy.

Atheists and Free Speech

Seven years ago the Association for the Advancement of Atheism obtained a certificate of incorporation in the State of New York. It does not appear, however, that the cause has been greatly advanced either in New York or elsewhere. Ancient obstacles are hard to remove.

In the spring of last year Charles Lee Smith, president of the band of atheists, determined to test the validity of a New York City ordinance authorizing the Police Commissioner to grant permits to persons to expound atheism in parks, streets and other places. He spoke at Columbus Circle, favorite spot for soap-box orators, received a summons, was convicted of speaking without a permit, and paid a small fine pending appeal. The conviction has been upheld by the New York State Court of Appeals.

The opinion of the court was written by Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, who said that the ordinance was not aimed at free speech, as Mr. Smith had contended, but at the manner in which free speech may be used. Public meetings, Judge Pound held, might be forbidden entirely; use of streets may be limited to certain purposes; the legislative power might forbid public meetings and speaking entirely. And, "if a reasonable difference may be found between classes of those who may have permits for street speaking and those who are not required to have such permits, the courts will not upset the legislative classification." Furthermore:

"The passion, rancor and malice sometimes aroused by sectarian religious controversies and attacks on religion seem to justify special supervision over those who would conduct such meetings on the public streets. That the ordinance does not cover all street meetings is no objection to reasonable classification."

This is the core of the matter. The atheists may hire halls for their attacks upon religious belief. But having hired a hall they become responsible for proper use of the building.

Down the Ice-Sheathed Bannister

All Other Forms of High-Speed Transit Pale by Comparison with the Heady Sweep at Seventy Miles an Hour Down a Six-Foot-Wide Bobsled Run

By George Trevor

ON the terrace foyer of the Grand Central Terminal, New York, there stands a queer looking cowled contraption, suggesting an old-time Vanderbilt cup race car of the Mineola-Jericho vintage with wooden runners where the wheels ought to be. A grim, business-like vehicle this, unfamiliar to American eyes. Commuters hustling for the five-fifteen pause for a moment and stare at this glorified version of the dinner tray on which they coasted as children down the staircase, fraying panties and parental tempers. They are looking at an Olympic-type racing bobsled, the four-seater model that originated on the Cresta Run at St. Moritz and is now employed on the even faster Van Hoevenberg slide at Lake Placid, New York the last word in tummy-teasing, heart-shocking thrills.

Words cannot convey the exhilaration peculiar to this the champagne of speed sensations, as ecstasy which brings speed-jaded motor racing drivers and thrill-surfeited air-plane pilots to Lake Placid for the February bobsleigh meet held under A.A.U. auspices. Once you have sampled gravity's heady wine on a roaring replica of a Jovian thunderbolt which catapults at better than seventy miles an hour down the six foot wide straightaways, all other forms of high speed transit seem tame, flat and vapid by comparison. Danger rides at your elbow in the form of a catapultic plunge over the rim of a steeply banked turn into a rock-garnished, tree-studded wilderness. It is not a pleasant thought, yet as Mr. Malthus said in "The Suicide Club" "it is with fear that one must trifle if one would taste the most intense joy of living." Goose-flesh is guaranteed the bobsled racing novice; indeed even case-hardened campaigners can never quite suppress that squeamish feeling.

Did you ever wake from a troubled sleep with that all gone feeling in the pit of your stomach and a shivery sensation of falling down, down, down into a bottomless abyss? Of course you have, and not necessarily from too many dry Martinis. That nightmare of plunging headlong through space is as old as mankind, an atavistic heritage. Remember how your heart clung to the roof of your mouth and your pulse danced a jig? Well, that's what bobsled racing feels like'

Oscar Geier could tell you about the lure of the bobsled run. This dark-eyed, pleasant faced Swiss sportsman, who got his bobsled baptism at St. Moritz, has been practising law in New York City since the war. When he first came over here he missed those shuddery swoops down the Cresta Run and yearned for his native Switzerland when the first snow fell! Now he merely packs a suit case, takes the overnight train to Lake Placid, and finds on the sheer shoulder of Mt. Van Hoevenberg a bobsled course that might palsy the fingers of even a Cresta addict.

"Your Mt. Van Hoevenberg course is what you Americans would call a honey," Mr. Geier told me. "It was designed by Stanislaus Zentzytski, Germany's leading bob-run engineer, and has more sharp turns than there are consonants in his Sibilyant name. There are twenty-six of them, to be exact, varying in degree from gentle bends

The German two-man bobsled hits the dished sidewall of "Zig-Zag" turn on the Mount Hoevenberg Run at Lake Placid to acute hooks that test a pilot's nerve and skill

"A racing bobsled is not exactly a toy It costs around $500, weighs 485 pounds empty, and measures some twelve and a-half feet in length. American bobsleds are equipped with steering wheels and designed for crews which assume a sitting posture. Crash helmets, resembling football headguards, are now worn by most racing crews. Leather face masks are likewise a sound precaution since they may avert disfiguring lacerations or eye injuries. The chap who shuns these somewhat ghoulish accouterments because of self-consciousness or false pride may not live to regret it. Helmets saved several members of the German team from death in their nasty Olympic spill.

"The skipper, as the helmsman of a bobsled is called, holds the lives of his crew in his hands. He sits in the most exposed position up front, gripping a steering wheel of the conventional automobile type. At the command 'brake!' the brakeman, in the rear, digs the steel rowels of a tri-pronged rake into the icy slide, arresting the rate of descent. Braking on a curve is the cardinal sin in bobsledding, banned both by the racing code and common sense.

"The steersman must hit the down grade turns which characterize the Van Hoevenberg run high up on the dished side wall, zoom immediately toward the rim, hug the upper sector momentarily, and then come down off the slope in a gradual arc.

"This high entrance is contrary to the technic employed at St. Moritz where the curves are built on relatively level ground between down slopes. I speak from bitter experience, as one who tried St. Moritz tactics at the Zig-Zag turn on the Van Hoevenberg Run and almost landed in the hospital. That was a bad moment. I glimpsed a row of trees uncomfortably close to the course. Boulders too. Somehow our skipper got her nose around at the last instant when our outside runner scraped within five inches of the brink. Whew, what a narrow squeak! I get what you call the jitters thinking of it.

"Beef is at a premium in bob racing. Other things being equal, the heavier the load the faster your descent. A bay window may be worth its weight in fractions of a second saved. We Swiss had no chance in 1932 because the lean and hungry looking Switzers had evidently eaten wisely rather than too well. The lightest man on the Olympic champion team weighed 185 pounds.

"You sit single file only ten inches above the ground in a bobsled. This accounts for the distorted impression of speed. Air-plane riding is a rather dull, stodgy business because there is no connection with the earth by which you can gage speed sensations; even at four miles a minute the pilot of a racing plane gets nothing like the kick experienced by the bobsled skipper. It is significant that the motor boat, which brings you closer to the medium over which you travel than any vehicle save a bobsleigh, is the second most exciting form of rapid transit. Speed, you see, is not synonymous with thrill."

You don't have to be a Harry Hornberger, Hubert Stevens or Oscar Geier to share the bobsledder's ecstasy. It is an ideal sport for the gallery. Platforms overlooking each curve on the Van Hoevenberg Run give spectators a birds-eye view of these earth bound rockets. Here you may taste vicariously the spice of danger under a frosty sky.

Bonfires blazing near each vantage point keep your toes warm but the vibrant hum of those steel runners on the mountain side growing louder and louder until the clear air pulsates like a brass bell will chill your blood and titillate your nerves. Here's speed that you can hear before you see it.

Dillinger Case Stirs Nation's Press to Sarcasm

Activities of America's Public Enemy No. 1 Lead President to Call on Congress for Early Enactment of Twelve Bills to Enlarge Federal Government's Police Powers

THE wide-spread man hunt for America's Public Enemy No. 1, the thirty-two-year-old John Dillinger, by an army of 5,000 police officers, sheriffs, Federal agents and even some Indians, has kept news wires humming for weeks with stories of the almost-incredible exploits and escapes of this daring and elusive young desperado and jail-breaker.

The pitched battles and trail of death which have accompanied the search for the defiant bank-robber are having nation-wide repercussions. President Roosevelt requested early enactment of the sheaf of twelve Federal bills which would greatly enlarge the police powers of the Federal Government. Editorial writers have nearly reached an exploding point as they dug into dictionaries for sarcastic epithets to hurl at authorities who let the outlaw slip through trap after trap. In Dillinger's native State, Indiana, the law-enforcement machinery has come in for a terrific beating and probably will be reorganized radically.

Dillinger's trail has been bloody. Thus far thirteen lives have been lost in the Government's efforts to make the outlaw eat his boast that there was no jail in the country strong enough to hold him. The fatalities in detail: One bystander, six Dillinger followers, and six men the Government set on his trail.

Parallel to Jesse James

As day after day passed, and Dillinger skipped from one hide-out to another, editorial writers observed that Jesse James, traditionally the nation's boldest and most daring outlaw, successfully eluded the authorities for sixteen years, from 1866 to 1882, and, even then, he was not killed by officers, but by two of his own band.

Since March 3, when Dillinger escaped with Herbert Youngblood, Negro, from the Crown Point, Indiana, jail, where he was in the custody of Sheriff Lillian Holley, the center of the man-hunt has been in five States, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Altho Federal and local authorities almost tripped over themselves in combing this area, Dillinger moved about with some measure of freedom. He stopped for a haircut in a barber shop, he visited his father's farm for a home-cooked dinner, bought automobiles, and even raided the police station at Warsaw, Indiana to replenish his arsenal. Then the scene shifted to the north woods of Wisconsin where the hiding game became desperate as Department of Justice agents gradually wove a tight net about the gang.

The young bandit first came into the national limelight last fall, when he was arrested at Dayton, Ohio, and identified as the leader in bank robberies at New Carlisle and Bluffton, Ohio, Indianapolis, and Farrell, Pennsylvania. He was turned over to Sheriff Jesse Sarber at Lima, Ohio, on September 28 to stand trial. Three days later he was released from jail by three confederates, and Sheriff Sarber was fatally wounded in the battle which ensued.

Sometimes It Takes Time to Catch a Rat
—Chase in the New Orleans Item

From October 1 to January 25, Dillinger not only was at liberty but apparently was active. He was identified as the leader of bank robberies during that time at Racine, Wisconsin, and East Chicago, Indiana, and eluded several police traps.

Happy, Smiling Family

On January 25, Dillinger was arrested at Tuscon, Arizona. With him were Charles Makley and Russell Clark, and some women companions. Amid much publicity he was flown to Crown Point to face slaying charges. Crown Point, it was said, had the strongest and finest county prison in the nation; it was impossible for a prisoner to escape. While photographers took countless pictures, Sheriff Holley and other authorities posed with Dillinger. It was a triumph for justice. Dillinger stood before the cameras, leaning affectionately with one arm on the shoulder of Robert C. Estill, County Prosecutor.

It was a happy, smiling family, until Dillinger escaped two days later by bluffing his way out with a wooden gun. The nation was aroused and the man-hunt began in earnest. The New York Herald Tribune, in an editorial typical of many, expressed the wish that the forces of Middle-Western law and order would spend "less time on publicity and more on their marksmanship." There were many words written about "police blundering," "women sheriffs" and "fool proof jails."

During March, Dillinger successfully avoided the officials. Once in Saint Paul, Minnesota, he shot his way out of a police trap and was wounded. He stopped for gasoline at Carthage, Illinois, on April 2, and a witness observed that he was suffering from the wound. On April 7 he was in an automobile crash at Noblesville, Indiana, and his woman companion bought a new car for him.

He dropped in to spend Sunday, April 8, with his father and relatives at his home town of Mooresville, Indiana, and had a fine home cooked dinner, but his father didn't report the incident until April 19. Three-dozen men reported seeing him in Brownsburg, Indiana, on April 13, where Dillinger stopped for a meal, haircut and some gasoline. He was reported seen in a dozen Mid-Western cities, from Niles, Michigan, to Sault Sainte Marie, and on April 18 he forced a Minneapolis, Minnesota, doctor and nurse to treat him for the wound he had received in his Saint Paul escape.

From then on the search narrowed down to the Wisconsin woods. Dillinger took over a summer resort at Little Bohemia Lake, where he remained several days with his gang. The proprietor sent word to Federal agents, but the outlaw battled his way out. Two were killed and four wounded.

"If nothing else, the depredations and journeys of Mr. Dillinger make the police look a trifle silly," commented the Baltimore Sun. The outlaw, said the Cleveland Plain Dealer, may have superior intelligence, but his reputation for being smarter than most criminals "is based mainly upon the fact that the law has been extraordinarily dumb."

Press Is Sarcastic

Most editorials pointed to the inadequacy of law-enforcement agencies. "We are paying heavily because our judicial and penal systems are not adequate to deal with this sort," said the Philadelphia Public Ledger, while the Utica Daily Press, in sarcastic vein, said the Dillinger story "grows more preposterous every day." Even European papers became excited. One correspondent to a London paper said "the entire Middle West is suffering from a bad attack of the 'Dillinger jitters.'"

New York Mayor's War on Slot-Machines

LaGuardia's Vigorous Fight to Eliminate From the Metropolis "the World's Meanest Racket" Is Expected to Set the Pace for Similar Crusades in Other Cities

NEW YORK'S fighting Mayor is giving the strongly-entrenched slot-machine racket its first real battle. Plunging through legal red tape and the stubborn, sabotaging resistance which all crime-infested businesses give the authorities, the ubiquitous Mr. LaGuardia and his army-trained Police Commissioner—Gen. John F. O'Ryan—are confident that they have a death grip on the industry that has garnered a corner on the title of "the world's meanest racket."

Other cities are watching the campaign. If Mayor LaGuardia succeeds in eliminating slot-machine gambling from New York, it is likely that other cities will follow suit. What the authorities have lacked up to the present are successful fighting methods, since the slot-machine manufacturers have managed to keep one step ahead of the law in many States. New York's Mayor is supplying a basketful of new ideas which have already produced remarkable results. Philadelphia is already conducting a new crusade following a marked increase in the number of penny and nickel gambling machines and the movement for revision of gambling laws is making progress.

In his pre-election campaign Mayor LaGuardia promised he would eliminate the racket. In many of his speeches he quoted material gathered by THE LITERARY DIGEST and published last August. Since taking office on January 1 the Mayor has had his heart set on breaking the industry and removing the machines from thousands of small shops, restaurants, candy stores, pool rooms and other public gathering places. On January 29, Police Commissioner O'Ryan gave his department thirty days to rid the city of slot-machines and the policy racket (a similarly tenacious form of gambling with "numbers" that has a sucker income running into the millions of dollars annually and is particularly popular in Harlem). That the Mayor was in earnest may be seen from the following results within three weeks of the police order:

Hundreds of machines seized and confiscated.

Thousands of machines suddenly disappeared from shops and other locations.

The Mayor himself unexpectedly appeared at a police station and sat as a committing magistrate in a test case, setting a precedent in the use of his powers.

Police raided a headquarters of the racket in a Broadway building and seized important files, data and machines.

On the other hand, in the midst of the police drive, the authorities were again given a legal setback when the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on February 13 affirmed a Federal Court decision restraining the police from interfering with slot-machines unless they could prove they were used for gambling. This leaves the burden of proof with the police, an interpretation which has seriously hampered the police from seizing machines which are openly acknowledged to be used for gambling.

When the new administration came into office two months ago, the police depart ment frankly admitted that there were between 25,000 and 30,000 gambling slot-machines in the city. Then Lewis J. Valentine, feared by cops and racketeers alike, became Chief Inspector, and the slot-machines have disappeared by the thousands.

Financially, the gangs who operated the machines were prospering, depression or no depression. The income of sucker money from the pockets of hard-working and small-salaried people who thought they had a sporting chance to win on the machines, was too high for accurate estimate. As a pathetically amusing contrast, Earl Sparling, staff writer on the New York World-Telegram, pointed out in a series of articles on the racket that in the entire pre-depression year of 1928 at the millionaire gambling resort of Monte Carlo, the Casino's roulette wheels took in only $4,566,104 gross. But in one month in New York during a depression year, the slot-machines were estimated conservatively to have taken in $4,000,000, or at the rate of $48,000,000 a year.

The Mayor made a surprize visit to the West 100th Street police station recently and sat in as a committing magistrate on a test case. Much to the awe of the woman who was haled before the "magistrate" for operating a slot-machine in her small restaurant, the Mayor gave his own opinion in a few terse words:

"People's exhibit Number 1 is clearly a slot-machine," he said. "The machine speaks for itself.

"It is not a vending machine, and not even a Federal judge can make it a vending machine. It is a gambling machine. A slot machine."

Evidence was introduced by police to show that the restaurant-keeper was forced by gangsters to maintain the machine. At regular intervals the gang collected the receipts and gave the restaurant-keeper a percentage. Asked by reporters if it wasn't the first time a New York Mayor ever sat as a magistrate, Mr. LaGuardia called over his shoulder as he was hurrying on to another appointment: "I really don't know—but we create precedents."

Hitting near the "top" of the racket, a surprize raid was made shortly after that by a squad of detectives, led by a dinner-coated Deputy Commissioner, on an eleventh-floor office at Broadway and Sixty-first Street. Elated over the results, Police Commissioner O'Ryan said: "As I predicted, the backbone of the slot-machine racket has been broken. I will say that the material found in the safe ought to go a long way in furthering the Mayor's policy against gambling."

Paxton Blair, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who represented the city in the recent court appeal, said that in good locations some of the twenty-five-cent machines return a profit of $100 a day. Some larger machines bring in even more.

"The phenomenal growth of the slot-machine racket to its present position," he continued, "as one of the most highly organized of criminal activities and as the treasury of organized crime may be attributed to the huge profits which the operation of the machines are capable of producing for their owners."

Writing in the New York Times, Margaret Hess observed that "every time a nickel goes into a slot-machine, a part of it finds its way into the hands of large-scale crooks and gangsters, the 'wise-guys' who never appear but who reap tremendous profits by remaining in the background."

"A player hasn't even a gambler's chance," the Mayor exploded on one recent occasion. "These slot machines are plain mechanical larceny." Then he proceeded to relate the statistical data prepared by Dr. E. E. Free and Dr. C. C. Clark of New York University showing that at best the player has only one chance in a thousand to win a "jack-pot."

On the Current Screen

In Men in White (AAA) Hollywood has made an expert screen adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize Play. All of the vivid authenticity of the hospital backgrounds, a large factor in the drama's Broadway success, has been captured in the motion-picture with even more terrifying clarity. With few exceptions, the cast equals and even surpasses the stage company in recreating the frightening complexities of a great medical institution and in giving emotional intensity to the plot, while Richard Boleslavsky's direction is imaginatively assured. If there are defects in the screen drama, they are those inherent in the play.

A scene from the screen version of "Men in White"

To veteran filmgoers, it may not seem surprising that Hollywood in a measure outdoes the theater in "Men in White." For some time before the Sidney Kingsley drama was presented, the screen had employed the milieu of a hospital for its offerings. Both in material and the rather kaleidoscopic changes of scene, the stage work actually appeared to be borrowing from the technique of the cinema. When it was taken to the West Coast for a celluloid production, it was something of a "coals to Newcastle" gesture.

The original narrative has been followed with fidelity and it is in this respect chiefly that "Men in White" may be found wanting. The knitting together of a series of rather accidental situations against an uncompromisingly realistic background always must be disconcerting. The film has captured marvelously the significant overtones of the drama, however—the brooding imminence of death, the fine idealism of the medical profession, the terrific pressure and curious contrasts of hospital activity. Against the brilliantly-conceived settings of Cedric Gibbons, it has been made into an arresting and frequently moving drama.

Most brilliant of the performances are those of Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Allan. The former, as the surgical genius whose dedication to serving humanity almost is a religion, brings a curiously human quality to fanaticism. Miss Allan is magnificent in the rôle of the tragic student nurse, whose casual love affair with a young interne leads to her death and the resolution of the plot. It was poor casting judgment to have Clark Gable play the apprentice doctor, torn between love and the arduous training demanded by his life-work. His characterization, altho competent and restrained, is comparatively lifeless. Myrna Loy, Otto Kruger, and Henry B. Walthal are splendid, however, in the other leading parts. The material and mise en scène of "Men in White" are not new to the cinema, but never before have they been caught in so compelling a pattern.

Many Happy Returns (AAA)—A farce, with pleasantly interpolated music, it proves an ideal vehicle for the antics of Burns and Allen. Norman McLeod, in directing the work, has succeeded in sustaining a splendid balance between a preposterous narrative—which finds George Burns being paid huge sums of money for every mile he carries Gracie Allen away from an harassed father—and the amusing didoes of the pair.

Sisters Under the Skin (AA)—Altho Frank Morgan and Elissa Landi contribute genuinely fine portrayals to the film, it is, on the whole, a disappointing entertainment. Two themes make up its subject matter: one, that of a middle-aged, successful, business executive, attempting to recapture the values in living which he missed amassing money; the second, a study of the mishaps which usually attend a romance between age and youth. Neither of them has been stated fully, or resolved thoroughly, and rarely are they fused in a dramatic unity.

The New Dealers. By Unofficial Observer. New York: Simon and Schuster; $2.75.

"I . . . await the moment when the revolution will get ahead of the current revolutionaries and either leave them behind as embarrassed conservatives or rush them headlong into real radicalism." This by the anonymous author, a Washington newspaper man, will, no doubt, add to the high-flown suspicion that the President is the tool of communists—especially when it is read in conjunction with an anecdote vouched for by the author:

"Mr. President," said a visitor, "if your program succeeds, you will be the greatest President in American history. If it fails, you will be the worst one."

"If it fails," said F. D. R., "I shall be the last one."

This book is not another Washington merry-go-round, tho merry throughout. It is friendly to the Administration but regards the New Deal as a force bigger than the men and women behind it. One gets in its four hundred meaty pages detailed pictures of more than fifty figures—heads of departments and their assistants, chairmen and sub-chairmen of the various projects bent on Recovery. It is the fullest history of the Administration yet written. As might be expected, its reasoning is brisk and its conclusions assertive.

The President's best assets, we read, are a marvelous digestion, without which no Chief Executive can now stand the gaff, and pedtical "it." "The civilization which produced him is to-day as dead as Nineveh and Tyre," and he has the wit to see it. In him the New Deal has found its best advertisement. "He is its Barron Collier and its Ivy Lee." Having before him the spectacle of the Soviet Union, of Mussolini or Hitler, he has invented nothing new, yet without him there might have been civil war. "His leadership is the art of not leading, but following the crowd. He has sense enough to trust the people."

The personnel of NRA, we read, needs a complete overhauling—save for Johnson's one good appointment, William H. Davis, Chairman of the National Compliance Board. The General once shouted to the director of CWA: "Why didn't you consult me before you established your wage scales?" "Why didn't you consult me before you approved some of your lousy codes?" was Hopkins's sufficient reply.

Frances Perkins has "more intelligence than all these [labor leaders] put together."

Under Wallace and Tugwell, and their able assistants, "American agriculture is the most far-flung experiment of a highly experimental Administration."

And so on through "Henry the Morgue" and Jim Farley "the traveling Elk" all the way down to the "Fallen Angels"—Col. Edward M. House, Newton D. Baker, John W. Davis, Senator Huey P. Long and former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Old Waybills. By Alvin F. Harlow. New York: D. Appleton-Century Company; $5.

The romance of express companies in the development of America is the subject of this book. The home town of the author, whose father was an expressman, was Sedalia, Missouri, in the region raided by Jesse James and his brothers. This volume, which is both a scholarly history and a book of adventure, is a successor of the author's two other works on transportation: "Old Towpaths: The Story of the Canal Era" and "Old Postbags: The Story of the Mail Service."

This latest volume has numerous illustrations of stage-coaches and the parcels which the express companies carried in the old days.

Here are recounted the beginnings of those captains of business, mostly from New England, Wells, Adams, Fargo, Westcott, whose names have become household words.

This business started on a shoe-string. It prospered because of the integrity of those who sponsored it.

For the general reader the most interesting chapters are those in which the author describes how the express companies met the gold rush of '49 by attempts to get the mail through, along with other necessities of life.

There are graphic descriptions of dashes from the mining camps by couriers carrying boxes of gold dust and of hair breadth escapes from Indians and other bandits. Incidentally, Joaquin Miller and Bret Harte were once expressmen.

Plays and Personalities of 1933

With Dramatic Critics Busy Selecting the "Best" Among Productions and Players, New and Old Stars and Dramatists Are Mentioned as Outstanding in the Theater

NOW that a year has ended it becomes stock-taking time with those that appraise the theater. The vogue seems to be to find ten among the plays and the players thereof better than all others. The danger in such an undertaking is the fallibility of personal choice, not to mention the ire that is raised in others when their favorites go unmentioned.

Robert Garland of the New York World-Telegram takes courage in both hands and produces a list of ten best plays and ten best performances. The plays seem to come off better than the performances so far as arousing protest is likely to go. "Men in White," the hospital play, by Sidney Kingsley, leads off, and few will contest its right to a place among the ten; but when it is preferred to O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" the devotees of America's first dramatist will probably not concur. However, without George M. Cohan playing the indulgent father, perhaps "Ah, Wilderness!" would not seem so good a play as "The Green Bay Tree," by Mordaunt Shairp, which achieves only a fifth place in Mr. Garland's roll.

But in the theater popularity does not always spell merit. If it did, "American Dream," by George O'Neill, a Theater Guild production, would not stand third. That play of American life that sprawled over three generations, which was not long lived, gives Mr. Garland his third place for a "best performance" in Douglass Montgomery's portrayal of Daniel Pingre. Yet nowhere in the list is Maxwell Anderson's "Queen Mary of Scotland," now filling the Guild Theater, which in others' view furnishes both a best play, and also a best performance at the hands of Helen Hayes.

KATHARINE HEPBURN
In "The Lake"

Going down the list we encounter No. 4. "As Thousands Cheer," by Moss Hart and Irving Berlin, not a play, but a revue. No one fortunate enough to crash the box-office of that extravaganza will disagree with Mr. Garland that "it stands for intelligence, satire, and a disarming sense of die-and-let-die." With a bit of a gratuitous hint to the Pulitzer Prize committee, Mr. Garland offers this in case that body is torn between the choice of "Men in White" and "Ah, Wilderness!"

After "Design for Living," No. 6, by Noel Coward, "The Pursuit of Happiness," No. 7, by Lawrence Langner, and "Sailor, Beware," by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson—"as free and easy a gob on shore"—the tail-enders are "Pigeons and People," by George M. Cohan, and "One Sunday Afternoon," by James Hagen.

HENRY HULL
As Jester Lester in "Tobacco Road"

There was, obviously, no chance of "Tobacco Road," by Erskine Caldwell coming into the first list, but the play gives Henry Hull the foremost prize for best performance. Here is almost the year's anomaly in the theater. Mr. Hull, a serviceable actor of many parts, mostly of the young, elegant, waster type, suddenly transforms into the elderly, lazy, sodden figure of a poor white in the Georgia back country. "If in my many adventures into the theater I have ever seen a completer impersonation," commented Percy Hammond (New York Herald Tribune), "I have forgotten it." Let that go for Mr. Hull's triumph, for there are none to gainsay it, especially since it recognizes that rather rare phenomenon of the actor's art—a complete subordination of the actor's personality. Let innocent playgoers be warned that Mr. Caldwell's piece is no tale of pretty Southern chivalry akin to Owen Davis's "Jezebel." Jester Lester's family are as bad a lot and as unpleasant as he himself. Mr. Caldwell justifies his right to put these people on the stage on the score of truth. And, tho he doesn't mention names, he was recently quoted as saying, with a possible glance at some of O'Neill's people, that "New England poor whites are immoral, while Southern poor whites are unmoral."

With Katharine Cornell triumphantly touring "the sticks," and finding a willing audience in Seattle waiting five hours for her belated train, there are only three ladies in Mr. Garland's list of eminent performers, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Lillian Gish and Fay Bainter. Their plays' sojourns were all short.

Perhaps Katharine Hepburn arrived so late in the season's theater that her turn is reserved for an end-of-season appraisal. Her screen popularity lifted her to the rank of Garbo and Dietrich in casual comment, but as money is said to talk, a poll of 12,000 exhibitors, furnished by Al Sherman for The Morning Telegraph (New York), fails to show any of the three ladies in a list of ten "biggest money-making stars of the year."

In her stage play, "The Lake," by the English Dorothy Massingham and Murray MacDonald, Miss Hepburn plays a neurotic girl at odds with life. The play does not seem destined for any list so short as ten; while as to Miss Hepburn, personality counts so high as to blind some reviewers to her qualities as an actress. She will not profit so much from Whitney Bolton's hysterical praise in The Morning Telegraph as from Richard Lockridge's sage and friendly advice in The Sun.

If Mr. Garland's future lists of personalities needs more women, Mr. Hammond supplies a third recruit from Hollywood—Miriam Hopkins, linking with Helen Hayes and Miss Hepburn:

"Miss Hopkins, not long ago a jittery ingenue, has arrived from her experiences in the drama of the Pacific coast, a full-fledged combination of Réjane, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Duse, the divine Sarah, and Miss Mary Anderson." Besides, another name is imminent, tho it comes across the water—the Austrian, Elizabeth Bergner. In London they are calling her "another Duse." There have been many.

Posterity Gets Another Lindbergh Plane

Ship in Which Famous Couple Toured Rim of Atlantic, Joins Other Historic Craft as Museum Piece

Two Lindbergh planes are now safely ensconced in world-famous museums, testimonials to the great flyer's ability not only to fly far and fast, but also to set his planes down safely at the journey's end.

The "Tingmissartoq" on its last flight

The Spirit of St. Louis, next to the pioneer craft of the Wrights the world's most famous air-plane, is in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

The trim craft in which Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh made their 29,000-mile tour around the edges of the Atlantic, and in which they flew to Alaska, Japan and China in 1931, this week soars in the Hall of Ocean Life of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, largest museum hall in the world.

The "Tingmissartoq" (so called by the Eskimos; it means "great bird") is a Lockheed Sirius low-wing monoplane, and one of the finest of modern planes. It is equipped with Edo pontoons and a 715-horse-power Wright Cyclone engine.

The graceful plane is suspended from the ceiling by four air-plane cables, high enough to prevent vandalism by souvenir hunters, low enough so that visitors to the balcony of the hall may look into the cockpit.

All the equipment necessary for a take-off and landing, and the instruments and radio set used by the Lindberghs, remain in the plane. Other equipment used on the recent flight is displayed in glass cases beneath the craft. These items include clothing, an outboard motor, photographic material, a sextant, chronometers, maps, charts, parachutes, landing flares, goggles, a tent, stove and cooking utensils.

Who Should Prescribe Diet?

Faulty diet is at least one important factor in dental decay, and probably has a bearing on various other tooth and mouth diseases. This raises the question: who is to prescribe diet for the treatment or prevention of dental disease, the physician or the dentist?

Dr. J. M. Wisan, chairman of the council on mouth hygiene of the New Jersey State Dental Society, recently threw something of a bombshell by asserting in the New Jersey State Dental Journal that dentists are probably at least as well trained as physicians in dietetics, and are probably even better qualified to prescribe diet for the treatment of dental disorders.

The 1932 report of a subcommittee of the American Dietetic Association, Dr. Wisan pointed out, contained a study of courses given in medical colleges. Of seventy-one medical schools surveyed, only twenty-two offered formal courses in nutrition, and only ten made such courses obligatory.

On the other hand, dentists and dental scientists have been in the forefront in recent research to learn more about diet and its effects on teeth and health. The Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus, in which technical articles in medical and dental magazines are listed, recorded for the years 1931, 1932 and the first three months of 1933 a total of sixty-eight articles on nutrition as related to dentistry fifty-one in dental magazines and only seventeen in medical journals. And of those in medical periodicals, nine were written by dentists.

New Small Fruits

Fruit breeders are still adding to the already long list of new varieties of small fruits. The New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, New York, has just announced twelve new fruits developed there; four new types of raspberries, five of strawberries, two of gooseberries, and one of elderberry.

Eyes May Reveal Age

Aging of the body is accompanied by—and may be caused by—loss of elasticity in the tissues. Hardening of the arteries, for instance, is one of the signs of advancing physiological age. The age as measured in years often is not closely related to the real age of the body as measured in this significant loss of elasticity.

Heretofore, there has been no precise way in which the loss of tissue elasticity could be measured. The Journal of the American Medical Association pointed out recently, however, that an exact index may be revealed through the studies of Heinz Steinhaus of Leipzig, Germany, on the relation of old age to the type of far-sightedness known as presbyopia. Steinhaus found, from a detailed study of many cases, that in persons in whom presbyopia is less than average, life expectancy is much greater than in those in whom it is above the average. In persons between the ages of forty and fifty, the difference is as much as ten years.

New Traffic Lights

Traffic-control signals of a new type, with an upraised red hand instead of the conventional red disk, are now being tried out at six intersections on Fifth Avenue, New York City. These lights take pedestrian traffic as well as vehicular movement into consideration. The man responsible for them, Dr. John A. Harriss, former special deputy police commissioner of New York, hopes their widespread adoption will help reduce injuries and deaths from automobiles in this country, which last year amounted to 34,000 killed and more than 1,000,000 injured.

In addition to the conventional green lens and the red hand, the signals include an orange disk which appears for a few seconds at each change in the direction of traffic. This is the signal for pedestrian traffic to move. While orange shows, vehicular traffic in all directions is halted, and pedestrians may cross without fear in any direction, even cutting through the intersection.

Dr Harriss believes that the red hand, besides its psychological value in arresting the attention of drivers, by its distinctive shape will aid color-blind autoists who can not distinguish ordinary red lights from green ones.

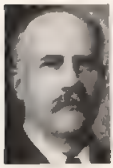
Religious Book Best Seller

Long ago there was a story current that Mark Twain and Robert Louis Stevenson sat on a bench in Washington Square discussing literary popularity. Stevenson was asking his friend the name of the most popular writer in the United States and Mark Twain was showing some confusion that implied modesty. "You're not the man nor I." said Stevenson and he named an up-country writer whose sales went into the millions.



Charles M. Sheldon

Alas that the name is forgotten, but as Stevenson died in 1894 and Charles Monroe Sheldon's "In His Steps" was not published until 1899 this writer was not in question.

A list of best sellers in America covering the period since 1875 has been compiled by Edward Weeks of The Atlantic Monthly for the Institute of Arts and Sciences, and Mr. Sheldon's book is rated as achieving a sale of 8,000,000 copies. Nineteen other books are counted within the million mark, and Mark Twain with "Tom Sawyer" (1,500,000) and "Huckleberry Finn" (1,000,000) registers two to Stevenson's "Treasure Island" (1,000,000).

No book since 1917 has reached the million grade. Gene Stratton Porter, coming second with a 2,000,000 sale of "Freckles," has three other books crowding toward that figure. John Fox exceeded the million with two books—"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," and those whose names occur once are Lew Wallace with "Ben Hur" (1,950,000), Harold Bell Wright, Owen Wister, Jack London, Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, Edward Noyes Westcott, Margaret Sidney, Eleanor Steward, Anna Sewell and George Du Maurier, "Trilby" (1,000,000).

The list, which ends with Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" (500,000), a number he shares with nine others, is too long to quote. Religion, the standing first in the long list of sixty-five titles, gives way to sentiment in many following ones.

History as viewed by H. G. Wells is halfway down the line and Lindbergh's "We" (594,000) follows not long after, with Durant's "Story of Philosophy" (545,000), a near neighbor. Zane Grey's "The Mysterious Rider" beat Sinclair Lewis's "Main Street" by 7,700, the latter selling 546,300.

England's Best Detective Seller

The best seller in detective fiction in England is Miss Dorothy L. Sayers. Even the records of Edgar Wallace and Conan Doyle have been eclipsed by her latest book, "The Nine Tailors," which sold 100,000 copies in seven weeks. Educated at Somerville College, Oxford, she describes herself as "a scholar gone wrong."

Songs of Yesteryear and of To-day

Many Refrains of the Pre-War Period Are Still Popular—Will Present-Day Songs Survive?

Do the popular songs of to-day express that joy of life that will make them linger in the memory, say, ten years from now? Who will be heard still mooning "I'm sorry I made you cry"? A competition in singing song by a group of persons adult before the war and a group of the present generation was suggested by Kenneth S. Clark in The Forum. He proposed that each group sing ten songs, chosen without recourse to the printed music, from the hits of its period and see which exhibits more real joie de vivre. He feared that songs of to-day would not even be remembered.

in song and dance days

Songs that come to us from radio orchestras and crooners are ultra-sentimental and deal with the theme of love. "Ah, the dubious taste of some of them, the lack of reticence in their lovers, and the want of decent self-pride." Mr. Clark spoke of "the sleekly pornographic songs which irked Ring Lardner so annoyingly during the last years of his life—songs which, as Sigmund Spaeth pointed out, tell the 'facts of life' to a lush fox trot or waltz accompaniment."

Mark Sullivan, in his volumes, "Our Times," covering the period from 1900 onward, paid attention to the songs that were sung by the people not for the people. Many persist to-day from the start of that period, like "the Sidewalks of New York," "The Bowery," "On the Banks of the Wabash" and "Little Annie Rooney."

A great number of songs of the pre-war period from 1900 to 1914 are listed, whose titles call up familiar refrains—"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Under the Bamboo Tree," "I've Got Rings on My Fingers," "Waiting at the Church" the list is long. Then the war songs of "The Long, Long Trail," "Over There," "Pack Up Your Troubles." No one doubts these are singable songs, but from 1923 "we begin to run aground in the shallow waters of modern influences.

"Leaders of community singing who like to include in their programs our current popular songs—as possibly destined to be our folk songs of to-morrow—have confessed that they have been able to find but a scattered new song here and there which people knew and liked to sing.

"Here is a list of 'the ten greatest songs of the last decade,' assembled not long ago by the radio critic of the New York Evening Journal, as a result of votes cast by 370 orchestra leaders and other radio authorities: 'Old Man River.' 'The Man I Love,' 'My Blue Heaven.' 'I'll See You in My Dreams,' 'Tea for Two.' 'Lover, Come Back to Me,' and 'Russion Lullaby.' A list for which any thoughtful student of popular songs must have respect, but not necessarily a list of the ten best-liked and most singable songs of that decade."

The radio is blamed as the song-killer of the present day, tho it draws so much of its life from song. Three months is the actuarial term given to a song to-day against a year and a half in pre-radio times.

"John Chapman reported in the New York Daily News that from the five leading New York City stations the following songs had these repetitions on the air on one Sunday: 'Blue Prelude,' six times; 'Happy as the Day Is Long,' five times; 'Hold Me,' five times; 'I Cover the Waterfront,' seven; 'Isn't It Heavenly?' six; 'Gold Diggers' Song,' six; 'Cabin in the Pines,' five; and fifteen or twenty others, four times. You don't wish to hear any of them again? How strange!"

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers report the average popular sale of an outstanding song hit prior to 1925 as 1,156,134 copies. To-day the corresponding hit makes 229,866. People rely on the radio for singing, and likewise for playing, for in the seven years before 1931 the sale of pianos in this country dropped from $93,670,000 to $12,000,000 per annum.

Prohibition is charged as responsible for the decline in singing. "The return to beer will have a tremendous influence sociologically," Irving Berlin is quoted as saying, "and this influence will be manifested in popular music by a return to the singable song."

The Future of the Air-Ship Revived

On the Anniversary of the Akron Crash, Air-Ship Defenders Still Maintain That Lighter-Than-Air Craft Are the Safest Medium of Transportation Known To-day

ONE year ago this week, the Akron crashed in a violent storm off the coast of New Jersey. The non-rigid blimp J-3 plunged into the sea in the search for Akron survivors and added two more lives to the list of victims of lighter than-air craft. The crash of the Shenandoah was recalled, and the blazing end of England's R-101. Before the promptly ordered official investigations could conduct fair trial, hasty press and public had condemned air ships. It is a significant fact that the verdict of the Joint Congressional investigation, as expressed in Col. Henry Breckinridge's official report, recommended that "the Navy continue in the maintenance, development, and operation of air-ships." All save two of the investigating committee, a hostile jury at first, came out of that investigation as strong advocates of lighter-than-air craft.

The Champion

Air-ships gained a real champion right after the Shenandoah crashed when Capt. Anton Heinen, former German officer during the war, rose to their defense. Bald, bristling sandy Van-Dyked, Captain Heinen gained a right to his opinions from his work in organizing the training service for German Army and Navy Zeppelin crews during the war. Again, after the Akron crashed, he rose to the defense of air-ships. Someone must have heard and believed, for former Captain Heinen is now Lieutenant-Commander Heinen, U.S.N.R. Last week at the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, he improved upon a request for an interview.

"I am supposed to be prejudiced; nobody would believe what I tell you," he said. "Suppose we go in and answer your questions before Commander Kenworthy." Commander Kenworthy is the "skipper" of the station, and with him were Lieut.-Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, of stratosphere fame, and other station officers. The old Los Angeles was moored in the hangar within fifty feet of these men as a perfect example of the reason that the uninitiated insist that there is no future for air-ships—the fabric covering her looks no heavier than a tablecloth, flimsy as a kid's kite.

"Flimsy, you say?" Lieutenant-Commander Heinen laughed and told the story of the storm-flight of the Shenandoah—of how a gale tore her away from the mooring mast at Lakehurst, left her whole nose hanging on the mast. Lieutenant-Commander Heinen piloted the wrecked ship out of the storm center and brought her safely back.

"To groundlings and as recounted in the newspapers," said Lieutenant-Commander Heinen, "we had been 'battling the storm,' but in fact there had been no such 'battle.' The speed of the air over the ground—the storm—is for an air-ship merely a navigational problem and never a question of structural safety. The gales that tear sails from ships are no gales at all to an air-ship, a free balloon in its own element. Perhaps this will demonstrate the scientific principle that protects us: The flag that drapes from the basket of a free balloon will hang unruffled vertically downward in an 80 mile gale!"

It was pointed out that it is "economically impossible to build and maintain a scouting fleet of surface craft, cruisers in the Navy, to approach the possibility of guarding against a surprize attack in so large an area as the Pacific over such an extended coast as that which must be held to stretch from Tacoma to the Canal Zone." Therein lies the wartime utility of the air-ship—as a long range scout for the Navy that is cheap to build and maintain and three times as fast as a cruiser. The ability of an air-ship to hover off enemy coast and await an opportunity to attack, and its long cruising range that facilitates surprize attacks will always make the airship a potentially dangerous offensive weapon. But as both Commander Kenworthy and Lieutenant-Commander Settle point out, the air-ship is primarily a defensive weapon—in guarding harbor entrances against mine layers and submarines, in protecting transports and shipping, and as a scout. Lieutenant-Commander Heinen testifies that the German submarine commanders had more wholesome respect for the efficient British blimp patrol than for any other form of submarine defense developed during the war.

The Defense States Its Case:

Since the first commercial air-ship was flown in 1911, five commercial air-ships have flown 12,000,000 passenger miles without a single injury to passengers—a one hundred per-cent. safety record for commercial lighter-than-air craft. The old, outmoded Graf Zeppelin has maintained her operating schedule between Germany and South America within the hour on fifty-three Atlantic crossings and has been as much as twelve hours ahead of schedule

A two and a half million dollar air-ship operating as a Navy scout can cover three times the area possible for an eleven million dollar cruiser carrying a crew only fifteen per cent. of that of the cruiser.

An air-ship is less subject to delay, discomfort, or damage by storms than any other existing medium of transportation known to-day.

The still unbroken record for a non-stop long distance flight for any type of aircraft was made by a German air-ship that flew 4225 miles in ninety-five hours carrying fourteen tons of freight back in 1917.

A properly organized commercial air-ship can operate at two cents per passenger mile between New York City and Buenos Aires, discharging mail and passengers en route with contact planes developed by the Navy, in fourteen days less time than the fastest steamer and three days less than present air-plane service over the same route.

Air-Ship Still Curiosity

But in America, the man who flies in the Macon or any other air-ship is still something of a hero. Mail planes scoot across the sky along a dozen routes. Farmers and their children along the route never look up from their work as the planes roar over their heads. But watch people rush to the windows and crane their necks when the Graf or the Macon flies over civilized, sophisticated New York City. Dirigibles are still news. That news value would be worth a million dollars in advertising for commercial lines in America. And yet as Commander Kenworthy recalled: "The Graf Zeppelin regularly plying between Germany and South America and never but once as much as an hour behind schedule, flies over Brazilian jungle country, and the natives, superstitious savages who have never heard of air-mail, go right on with their whittling or sewing or whatever they happen to be doing. Air-ships are routine to these ignorant savages."

ONE GALLON OF GASOLINE ENOUGH ON 26-MILE RUN

Checked by Western Union officials at start, en route, and at finish, the Studebaker Dictator pictured covered the 26 miles between the city limits of Aurora and Congress Park, Ill., at a 30-mile per hour average speed. To insure accuracy of test, only one gallon of gasoline was put in special container connected direct to carburetor.

And easily the finest of all Studebakers!

HAULS 14 HEAVY MEN UP 45 PER CENT GRADE IN HIGH GEAR

This photograph, taken in late February, shows a new Studebaker climbing a 45 per cent snow-covered grade in high gear. Tremendous power, economically utilized, distinguishes all the new Studebakers. And Studebaker's steel reinforced by steel construction is so strong that a Dictator sedan recently was pushed twice off a 104-foot cliff without material damage even to the alignment of its doors!

There's a full 50 inches of width in the front seats of all Studebaker sedans. And that's true of the low priced Dictator as well as Commander and President. Very few, even among the costliest cars, are as commodious in rear seats or front seats as these new Studebakers.

THE advanced aerodynamic design that distinguishes these new Studebakers has a much more practical purpose than its dramatic appeal to the eye. It gives you cars that rival the costliest in roominess, riding comfort and safety.

You notice a steadiness, new in your driving experience, when you head one of these 1934 Studebakers into cross winds or gusts.

And when you ride over ruts and obstacles, or round corners at speed, Studebaker's million-dollar Quadripoise Suspension keeps the entire car—not just the front end—in shock-cradled balance. Forward pitch, jouncing and sidesway are successfully subdued. Car life is lengthened.

Drive one of these skyway style Studebakers. See how uncanny "mechanical brains" make operation almost entirely automatic. Note the sturdy speedway stamina with which every moving part of these cars functions.

And your big thrill comes when the price is quoted—for these 1934 Studebakers not only cost you $175 to $645 less per model than their brilliant predecessors, but you can get a skyway style Dictator, with all its Studebaker prestige and performance, for just a few dollars more than a car of very lowest cost!

TWO AERODYNAMIC MASTERPIECES OF 1934 "GET TOGETHER"

Could vehicles talk, this meeting of the Union Pacific's new 110-mile-an-hour train and a new skyway style Studebaker would undoubtedly sound like a session of a mutual admiration society. Standing alongside the Studebaker in the photograph are Union Pacific officials who accompanied their superbly streamlined train on its visit to Studebaker headquarters at South Bend following its tour of the East and inspection in Washington by President Roosevelt.

PERFECT BALANCE..AS IN THE NEW STUDEBAKERS

It's a natural instinct for balance that enables expert circus performers to poise their weight so confidently. And in the new Studebakers, it's scientific distribution of weight that gives you such a feeling of security and comfort under all driving conditions. Center of gravity is within 27 inches of the ground. Cars are wider (74 inches) than high (69 inches).

since we changed to a Chevrolet!"

CHEVROLET After being a "steady customer" at gas stations for so many months, what a relief it is to buy a Chevrolet—and save! You wonder why you didn't trade in that old car long before you did! Chevrolet is so easy on gasoline. It uses so little oil. Why, the money you save on a car like this, in a very short time, is enough to buy several nice accessories—or make a monthly payment or two. And the strange part of it all is—people don't generally think of economy first, when they think of a new Chevrolet. There are so many other things about the car to catch their fancy: Its appearance—so big, clean-looking and massive. Its Fisher body—with all the added room and luxury inside. The six-cylinder engine—with its 80 horsepower and 80-miles-an-hour speed. And that greatest of all 1934 sensations: "Knee-Action" wheels! Yes there's so much that's new and exciting about the 1934 Chevrolet, no wonder people overlook one of the things that's most important of all: its matchless economy. According to big business firms who use many makes of cars, the 1934 Chevrolet stands number one when it comes to miles per gallon—and miles per dollar of all-round cost.

FULLY-ENCLOSED KNEE-ACTION—A patented type, exclusive to Chevrolet in its field. Gives the "gliding ride" with shock-proof steering and safe, dependable operation.

BLUE-FLAME ENGINE—Makes possible more power (80 horsepower) plus more speed (80 miles an hour) along with more miles per gallon (the lowest gas consumption of any full-size car).

CABLE-CONTROLLED BRAKES—A new 1934 development, found only in Chevrolet. These brakes are big. They're powerful. They respond quickly and positively in any weather.

Chevrolet FOR 1934

Don't slow down on our account-

we don't feel the bumps at all!"

■ Remember how grandmother always used to say: "Better go slower. We're getting bounced around"? But that was last year, in the "Pre-Knee-Action Era," before the family bought their new Chevrolet. And now—how things have changed!

The back seat is one of the rest-spots of the car. Junior sleeps just as soundly as if he were in his crib. Even over rough roads at moderately fast speeds, there's nothing to worry about. Everyone can relax. Chevrolet has taken care of that!

Knee-Action wheels absorb bumps and jolts, and all the old bouncing-up-and-down in the back seat. Larger Fisher bodies provide extra roominess, front and rear—extra space to move around in, and keep comfortable. New and larger cable-controlled brakes make the car safer; a new Y-K frame makes it stronger, more durable. The 80-horsepower engine runs quietly without seeming to work hard, even at 80 miles an hour. And speaking of this engine, have you heard about the thing that Chevrolet is proud of most this year? Despite the car's longer wheelbase, despite its greater weight and a 23% increase in power, it uses even less gasoline than last year's Chevrolet. And that, as thousands know, was a real record-breaker when it came to "miles per gallon!"

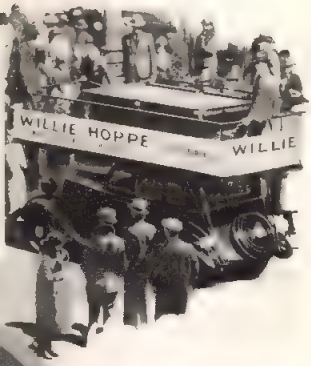
STEADY ENOUGH FOR BILLIARD SHOTS

Studebaker's incomparable Quadripoise Suspension and famed Willie Hoppe recently thrilled crowds. A Brunswick table was mounted on a new Studebaker and as the car moved along smoothly, Hoppe made difficult shot after shot.



"THEY'VE GOT THE STAMINA FOR OUR OREGON LOGGING ROADS"

We're quoting Studebaker owner N. M. Troland of Vernonia, Oregon. Mr. Troland says his new 1934 Dictator stands up as though built to order for work in the mountainous "big timber" country such as you see above. Studebaker stamina stems from years of record-breaking performances in stock car and Indianapolis Speedway racing.

"I GET BETTER THAN 19 MILES TO THE GALLON"

"They built astonishing economy into that brilliant engine that powers my new Dictator," says owner George E. Hickman. "I give a car punishment. I take long trips and drive fast. The 5,000 miles I covered in the first month didn't mean even five minutes 'time out' for an adjustment."

AND THEN PRUDENTLY CHOSE A 1934 STUDEBAKER FOR HIS CAR

PURE WHITE AND 726 CARATS
Photograph shows the $350,000 diamond recently found by J. J. Jonker in South Africa. It is larger than a match box.

Right to left in foreground are L. Redlick of Tommy's Garage, Studebaker dealers in Johannesburg, South Africa, J. J. Jonker, fortunate diamond discoverer, and his son. They could have bought any car made—naturally. But they sensibly chose a new Dictator Sedan after weighing the desirability of 18 other makes.

STEEL OVER STEEL CONSTRUCTION DEFIES TERRIFIC 104-FOOT DROP

Studebaker bodies are so strong and safe that one of them emerged almost unscathed from two test drops into a 104-foot rock quarry. Pictured above is the stock Dictator used for the test about to take its first plunge. Doors opened and closed perfectly and car was instantly started and driven away.

STUDEBAKER value stands out conspicuously this year in any comparison. The temptation to pay more for a car is gone.

All around the world, from the timber regions of our own Oregon to the diamond studded veldts of far South Africa, the new Studebaker combination of skyway style, speedway stamina and sensational low price continues to convert motorists long loyal to other cars.

Here are low-swung, sleek, new air-curved bodies of seamless steel reinforced by steel. Here is the great comfort assurance of 1934 . . . Studebaker's own million-dollar Quadripoise Suspension which scientifically cradles the action of all four wheels, not just the front wheels—successfully subdues forward pitch, jouncing and sidesway regardless of speed or roads.

Here are cars with the famed Studebaker "mechanical brains" that reduce physical effort and mental strain so completely, you have scarcely anything to do but steer!

Most every other car is higher priced today than last year. But Studebaker prices are still $155 to $620 less. And these skyway style Studebakers of 1934 are finer cars than the finest Studebaker ever built before. See and drive a new Studebaker today.

"Daddy, ARE WE RICHER THAN WE USED TO BE ?"

"THAT'S what a little girl said to her father when she had her first ride in the family's 1934 Nash.

That's how a little girl felt when she looked out over the long, long Nash hood; when she saw the beauty of the Nash dash panel; when she felt the richness and softness of the Nash cushions and upholstery—and when she noticed people eyeing the car as it glided by.

Every instinct told the little girl her family must be richer to have a car as lovely as this; to have a car that skimmed over the miles so swiftly, so smoothly, so quietly—such a contrast, such a delightful contrast after the way the old car ran.

The little girl didn't know, wouldn't understand, the many mechanical reasons that make a 1934 Nash so enjoyably different—such as a Twin Ignition valve-in-head motor for instance.... She just sat in the car and thrilled!

And in innocence asked..."Daddy, are we richer than we used to be?" ... Never dreaming that her father actually paid several hundred dollars less for the new Nash than he had paid originally for the car he traded in!

And the bigger, huskier, higher powered 1934 Chevrolet truck is the lowest priced Six you can buy

CHEVROLET Watch out, when you buy a truck this year, that you don't make the mistake of getting the wrong number of cylinders. With SIX, you're "all set" as far as economy is concerned . . . and dependability, too . . . and long life. But with more than six, you're likely to spend much more than you can afford for gas, oil and maintenance. And with less than six, you're up against the old problem of excessive vibration and resultant wear and tear. That's why the big majority of truck buyers, again this year, are saying "SIX cylinders!" And here's why they're adding, in the same breath, "Chevrolet!" In its 1934 truck Chevrolet has developed the six-cylinder principle to its most efficient, most economical point. Chevrolet gives you this six-cylinder economy in a big, husky, high-powered truck that's not a made-over passenger car, but is all truck throughout! And best of all —Chevrolet gives it to you at the lowest price in the world at which you can buy a Six! Could you ask for anything better in a hauling unit than that? Especially when it bears the dependable name: Chevrolet. And when it carries the added recommendation of being "America's largest-selling truck!"

The lowest-priced Six on the market is the big, husky, money-saving Chevrolet

TALK to men who have owned various makes of trucks—with various kinds of engines. "The real Economy truck," they will tell you, "is a valve-in-head Six. We have found that out through years of practical experience." With more than six, you are very apt to spend more than you want to on gas, oil, upkeep. With less than six, you face the old problem of destructive vibration. But if you really want a truck that saves, pick an overhead valve Six every time. . . . You pay less for a Chevrolet truck than for any other Six on the market. You pay less to buy it—you spend less to run it—and you get more in return! Chevrolet is all truck throughout—"Blue-Flame" truck engine, big truck brakes, rugged truck frame, heavy-duty truck axles, and the best-looking, best-built line of truck bodies available in the low-price field.

"I'd Sooner Insure a Car with Hydraulic Brakes!"

★ A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH CAR INSURANCE MANAGER C. G. LANDRESSE ★

1 "Our records show which cars are good risks and which are bad. We picked Plymouth for our own use because we know how safe it is."

"... and I certainly wouldn't Drive a Car without them"

INSURANCE MEN don't gamble on cars. They know what causes accidents ... and what a car needs to keep out of them.

"I looked at the records," says Mr. Landresse. "They showed there wasn't a single fatality in a Plymouth in our county during the past year. That was proof enough for me that Plymouth's Hydraulic Brakes and Safety Steel Body provide the very best protection."

And it's just this protection that Mr. Landresse and six of his road men get from the Plymouths they drive in their daily work.

This is, of course, a most convincing story of the plus value you get from Plymouth's extra safety features. It most clearly demonstrates the importance of a Safety-Steel Body and self-equalized Hydraulic Brakes.

But few people buy cars for their safety features alone. Comfort is important, too. So we made Plymouth an easier-riding car.

Its Floating Power engine mountings free you from the tiring effect of engine vibration. Its Individual Wheel Springing takes the bounce and jounce out of the deepest ruts and bumps.

CHECK THE DIFFERENCES in the low-priced cars this year. Ride in "All Three." You'll find that only Plymouth has all the features you need for complete driving comfort and safety.

Any Dodge, DeSoto or Chrysler dealer will gladly arrange for you to put Plymouth through its paces ... out on the roads you pick.

2 "There are lots of steep hills in San Francisco. Good brakes are essential. That's why, in 1933, more Plymouths were sold in this city than any other car at any price. Plymouth's Hydraulic Brakes are the one kind most car owners wanted."

The Car of a Million "OK's"

More than a million people have okayed Nash cars by planking down their money and becoming enthusiastic owners of Nash cars.

A motor car success exceeding a million cars is too great to happen by chance. There must be good reasons for it. All this good faith in a car could not exist, much less keep spreading and growing, unless Nash year after year thoroughly justified people's faith.

The 1934 Nash is what it is today because it benefits by all the cumulative experience and skill developed in the building of a million cars preceding it.

It's the smartest, richest, finest Nash ever built. A new high in motor car enjoyability. Every model Twin-Ignition-powered for the last word in performance. Individual front wheel suspension without sacrificing the front axle. Clear-vision ventilation. Bendix equal-action brakes. The most convincing car on the road you ever drove!

And the other two big features are for safety . . . naturally, all the more important if yours is a family car.

Hydraulic brakes stop you more quickly—because they always "take hold" equally on all four wheels. And as for safety-steel bodies—isn't it obvious that you're better protected with steel reinforced with steel . . . and not with wood?

"Building a Canal—or Buying a Car—Good Engineering Counts"

★ A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER FRANK VIOLETTE ★

1. "We depend on steel for safety in the Canal and in our buildings. We've found it's positive proof against everything from termites to earthquakes. So I knew that, in a car, a Safety-Steel Body would be the strongest."

"We punish cars down here . . . but let me tell you how my Plymouth takes it"

FRANK VIOLETTE IS a modest man. He talks very little about his supervising millions of dollars' worth of Panama's construction. But ask him about cars . .

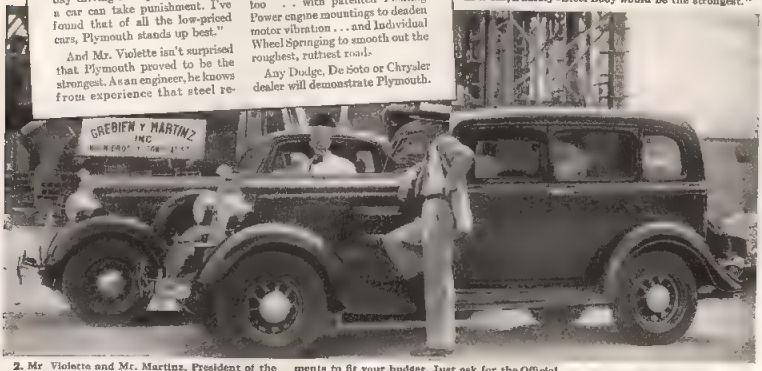
"In the Canal Zone, our everyday driving soon proves how well a car can take punishment. I've found that of all the low-priced cars, Plymouth stands up best."

And Mr. Violette isn't surprised that Plymouth proved to be the strongest. As an engineer, he knows from experience that steel reinforced with steel is the safest form of construction.

But Plymouth engineers didn't stop with this one safety feature. They also gave Plymouth Hydraulic Brakes—the safest brakes made

Then, they built in extra comfort, too . . with patented Floating Power engine mountings to deaden motor vibration . . . and Individual Wheel Springing to smooth out the roughest, ruthless road.

Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will demonstrate Plymouth.



2. Mr Violette and Mr. Martinz, President of the construction company with which Mr. Violette is associated, each with his De Luxe Plymouth. Plymouth prices begin at $530 at the factory. Time payments to fit your budget. Just ask for the Official Chrysler Motors Commercial Credit Plan. Duplate Safety Plate Glass throughout at the lowest extra cost in the industry (only $10 on the De Luxe Sedan).

Sports Speaker

Graham McNamee, for eleven years, has broadcast nearly every major sporting event for the radio. Back in May, 1922, he was sitting on a jury making $3 a day, his only income. Before that he had been a house-to-house meat salesman. During the jury's lunch-hour recess he strolled into WEAF, largely out of curiosity. An hour later he came out with a job as a barytone soloist. To-day he is one of the most widely-known men in the country. He lives in New York City. In June he will broadcast the Max Baer-Primo Carnera fight.

Outboards Have Their Day

Middle Atlantic outboard motorboat enthusiasts have had two week-ends packed full of competition—the Albany to New York marathon down the Hudson, and the Trenton to Philadelphia shuttle race on the Delaware River.

The 132-mile run down the Hudson has grown to be recognized as the most gruelling test yet devised for the barking little outboards. Concealed sand-bars and floating driftwood have conspired with the whims of the fate ruling the conduct of gasoline motors to make the Albany-New York marathon for outboard motorboats a race rivaling the Grand National test of thoroughbreds. No driver has won twice.

This year Charles Johnson, an amateur, in his first start in this race finished six miles ahead of the field and almost equalled the record for the grind. None of the six class-winners of last year even completed the course; only eighteen of the sixty-six starters finished.

Among the victors was a great name in power boating—Gar Wood. But it was "Junior," son of the grizzled veteran of the Harmsworth Trophy classics. The sixteen-year-old son finished first in the Class A amateurs. All down the course his father watched from an air-plane.

Amateurs Still in the Open

Nearly thirty amateurs, or almost a fifth of the starting field of 150, have survived the harrowing qualifying rounds for the National Open Golf Championship from coast to coast throughout twenty-two districts. Amateur Johnny Goodman, defending open champion, will have plenty of support when he starts battling the professionals in the Open.

And a Britisher showed his heels to the pack—Phil Perkins, former amateur champion of England. No great stylist, still he turned in two cards for 69s.

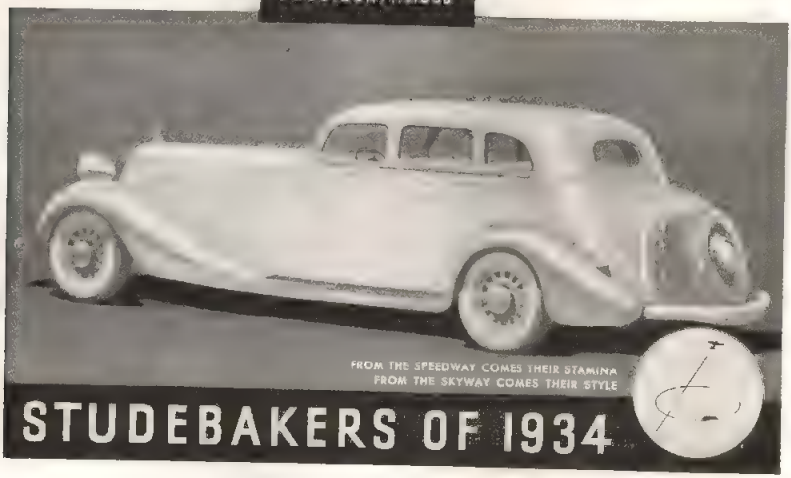
SKYWAY STYLE STUDEBAKERS PERFORM STARTLING FEATS TO PROVE IT

QUADRIPOISE SUSPENSION—THE MILLION-DOLLAR COMFORT RIDE

Studebaker has invested over a million dollars in developing quadripoise suspension which keeps all four extremities of the chassis in scientific balance regardless of roads. Pitch and sway are effectively overcome—rear seats ride like front seats. The New Studebakers are wider (74 inches) than high—(69 inches)—with more than half of weight within 27 inches of ground—they can safely tilt to a 58 degree angle.



STUDEBAKER ENTHUSIAST FLIES OVER WASHINGTON

Associated Press dispatches recently told of the flight of a new-type, low cost airplane over the national capital—the bird-like Arup, designed by Dr. C. L. Snyder of South Bend, Ind. According to Dr. Snyder, the new skyway style Studebaker sensibly and practically co-ordinates advanced aeronautic knowledge with that mastery over ground-air currents which the truly up-to-date automobile of 1934 should have.

HIGHWAY POLICEMAN REFEREES IMPRESSIVE ECONOMY TESTS

"Skyway style Studebakers get as high as 21 miles from a gallon of gas," reports Police Chief E. A. Ahlstrom of Waukegan, Ill. An officer assigned by Chief Ahlstrom checked Dictator gallonage over a measured course and average was better than "21 per."

JOAN BLONDELL GIVES STUDEBAKER HER VOTE

You'll see Joan Blondell in a new skyway style Studebaker roadster in Warner Bros. production "Smarty". Pictured is the fascinating Joan with her director, Robert Florey, deciding that Studebaker distinction is needed to make this picture all star all the way. "I'm in love with the smartness of these new Studebakers," confesses Miss Blondell.

with the money they saved on their new skyway style Studebaker

LUCKY folks, you may call these young Chicago suburbanites, who have motored away to balmy skies and sun-drenched sands in March!

Yet, who that could, wouldn't do likewise? In a car as wonderful as a skyway style Studebaker! And with $400 more in the bank account than the new Studebaker was expected to cost!

Although these are the best built, best looking, best performing cars in Studebaker history, their low prices seem incredible to anybody who ever bought or thought of buying a Studebaker.

The new Dictator, for example, is priced only a few dollars more than the very lowest cost cars. The new Commander is $105 to $305 less than its 1933 predecessor. The new President has a factory price as low as $1095!

And because these cars are Studebakers in every detail—in workmanship and performance as well as prestige—sales have been soaring tremendously in every section.

You'll be thrilled by the driving qualities of these new Studebakers. The famed Studebaker "mechanical brains" make car operation so automatic you have scarcely anything to do but steer!

And Quadripoise Suspension—Studebaker's own million-dollar development—scientifically cradles the action of all four wheels not just the front wheels—makes rear seats ride like front seats—overcomes forward pitch, jouncing, and sidesway.

STEEL-OVER-STEEL BODY DROPS 104 FEET UNHARMED

Even the doors of this skyway style Studebaker remained in perfect alignment after each of two terrific 104-foot drops into the Pennsylvania rock quarry pictured. Fenders crumpled and hood came loose—otherwise the steel reinforced by steel body stood up practically unscathed. Car was started instantly and triumphantly driven away.

SURFBOARD RIDING DEMONSTRATES QUADRIPOISE SUSPENSION

The amazing comfort of all seats, particularly rear seats, in the new Studebakers is due to Quadripoise Suspension—Studebaker's own million-dollar development in safety and riding ease. Scientific distribution of weight, similar to that required in surfboard riding, keeps all the new Studebakers in balance under all conditions—and at any rate of speed or on any type of road, successfully subdues forward pitch, jouncing, and sidesway.

It takes Healthy Nerves—

TO BE A CHAMPION SKI JUMPER
ANTON LEKANG—National Ski Jump Champion of the United States, 1932. With over forty titles and trophies behind him, Anton Lekang, a Camel smoker for many years, says: "A day's last Camel tastes just as good as the first one. They never interfere with healthy nerves."

Here is a series of six lines, exactly the same length. Have someone count quickly, one, two, three, four, five, six, while you divide each line exactly in half. Now measure each line with a ruler. What's your score? The average person divides the lines within one-eighth of an inch.
Florence Burnham (Camel smoker), famous woman motorboat racer, divides them within one-sixteenth of an inch
IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
It is a fact that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

ANTON LEKANG, winner of over 40 titles and trophies, smokes Camels steadily—without a sign of jangled nerves. He says:

"The most important elements in ski jumping are correct timing and healthy nerves. In fact, they add up to the same thing because you cannot have correct timing without healthy nerves. I have been jumping at championship ski-runs for years. And I have smoked Camels steadily for even longer. They are the only cigarette that I don't get tired of. A day's last Camel tastes just as good as the first one. And Camels never interfere with healthy nerves."

Countless thousands are changing to Camels. And they are urging others to join them! Camels are milder. They have a rich, satisfying flavor. And they leave your nerves smooth and unruffled.

"Jobs often lost... because a man neglects shaving"

SAYS H. A. BARKER, PERSONNEL MANAGER, HOTEL NEW YORKER

H. A. BARKER

"Spruce up or get out!" How many top executives have said words to this effect! And all for the lack of a clean shave.

Close, careful shaving is essential in business today. Employers can not and will not tolerate untidy appearance. One prominent employment manager after another stresses this important fact. "Neglecting to shave well has cost many a man his job," says Mr. H. A. Barker, personnel manager of the famous Hotel New Yorker, Manhattan's largest hotel. "Naturally, we must insist on tidy appearance in all our employees, and no man looks well unless clean shaven."

Think it over. Were truer words ever written? Don't you agree that a man looks slovenly with stubble on his face? Don't you agree that he risks his job by failing to shave well and often? Why should anyone take this chance? Shaving is not difficult or unpleasant when you use the Gillette "Blue Blade."

Millions of men know this is true. The Gillette "Blue Blade" is the product of manufacturing equipment and methods without equal anywhere in the world. Of course you get a degree of shaving comfort obtainable with no other shaving instrument.

No razor can be entirely satisfactory unless adjustable for the requirements of your beard. The Gillette Razor with its flexible blade provides this essential feature. This and other important advantages make the Gillette "Blue Blade" overwhelmingly first choice of the nation's shavers. Try it tomorrow and see for yourself.

HERE'S THE STORY OF ALL-WAVE RADIO

BY RCA VICTOR

Here's the "World Dial" that brings you everything

On this full-vision airplane type dial, extra large in size . . . are marked the four broadcast bands that bring you all the radio ranges, short wave and standard. On its face is a miniature map of the world, symbolic of "His Master's Voice" around the globe, brought you on radio waves flashing through the sky at the astounding speed of 186,000 miles per second!

How you travel 3000 miles quick as a flash... radio's newest thrill

You sit in your home. Thousands of miles away...in Rome, Paris, London or Bangkok ...an orchestra leader raises his baton for the first crashing chord of a great symphony, or a famous statesman begins a speech to his countrymen. At the same instant a wireless telephone amateur in Texas starts talking to a friend in Maine.

In that moment, too... a police radio in Chicago raps out crisp orders. An airplane coming into the Newark Airport from Miami reports. Now, Buenos Aires is getting in touch with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition...now a Melbourne news commentator tells of a new heat wave in Australia ...now a famous comedian speaks from Radio City. You sit in your home. Yet besides you is an RCA Victor Globe Trotter Radio that brings the world into your living room. For at the turn of a switch and the twist of a dial you, yourself, can hear many of the thrilling, stirring events depicted here. There are more than 200 foreign stations, countless amateurs, ships at sea, police calls, airplanes and all the many hundreds of domestic stations . . . the whole wide world of radio . . . yours on RCA Victor's Globe Trotter Radios.

That is the story of RCA Victor All-Wave Radio. A story of masterful engineering, of long research, of fine workmanship. And that is the accomplishment which enables you to travel round the globe on radio wings more quickly than you can step across your living room . . . to hear not only fascinating foreign programs, but every domestic program as well. Thus, although reception from abroad may not always be available because of variation of time between distance points, your radio enjoyment need not stop.

On the Screen

At first glance Alice in Wonderland (AA) and Going Hollywood (AA) would appear to have nothing in common, but both of these new products of the West Coast studios suffer from the same complaint. Superficially handsome, staged with lavish care, and fairly bristling with celebrated performers, they represent an obsession with physical production which quite overshadows the material inherent in them. As a series of animated illustrations for Lewis Carroll's book in the Tenniel manner,

"Alice in Wonderland" is a splendid success, but it achieves little more than this. Settings, costume, make-up and the distortion of backgrounds are perfectly executed. The characters, however, instead of being delightfully mad creatures engaged in one of the greatest fantasies ever conceived, move woodenly from one pose to another.

"Alice in Wonderland," a combination of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Alice Through the Looking Glass," takes one through some of Alice's most wonderful adventures, from the pool of tears and the mad tea-party to the Queen's croquet game and banquet. Technically, the film is excellent, translating all of the Carroll conceits to the screen in literal terms, the walrus and the carpenter episode being done as an animated cartoon. But altho such notables as Gary Cooper, Edna May Oliver, W. C. Fields, Richard Arlen, Polly Moran and Alison Skipworth don strange disguises in the principal rôles, they do not succeed in capturing the elusive and splendid quality of the book. A virtual newcomer, Charlotte Henry, gives the best performance.

"Going Hollywood"—Based on the familiar theme of a hero-worshiping young girl overcoming all obstacles to attain her heart's desire, this film might have emerged as a delicate musical satire had a sustained treatment been employed. Every little while, however, an absurdly lavish spectacle is thrust into the story, making the production haphazard and frequently tedious. Marion Davies is excellent as a young lady persistently following a crooner to Hollywood, supplanting his leading lady in a film, and finally winning him away from an earlier love; and Bing Crosby, as the crooner, sings a variety of extremely good songs. Patsy Kelly, Stuart Erwin and the Radio Rogues enliven the proceedings.

ture. But by the Jesuits' own account the "heretics" in the human cargo outnumbered the "papists." In other words, Lord Baltimore's original colony counted more Protestants than Catholics.

The raw material of the experiment was there, along with the recipe which, in a nutshell, was this: no church was to rule the State, or to be the church of the State; no Christian was to be denied any rights or privileges allowed to any other Christian; and no Christian of any sect was by any means to be permitted to use the name of any other sect as a term of contempt, derision, or reproach.

The First Lord Baltimore

It is the settlement of this company of original Marylanders at a place six miles up the Saint Marys River flowing into the Potomac near its mouth—which is being commemorated formally at Saint Marys City. Modern Marylanders and their guests are seeing fair copies of the Ark and the Dove bringing to the shore a living presentment of Lord Baltimore's people and a pageant of what happened afterward on the river bank, where nestled an Indian village which the newcomers bought with "axes, hatchets, hoes, rakes, and cloth."

Saint Marys is being restored—as Jamestown has not yet been, notwithstanding what has happened at Williamsburg, six miles away. The celebration—climax of a series extending over months, or since the three-hundredth anniversary of the sailing from Cowes—is not concerned only with the landing of the Ark and the Dove. There also is the opening of the first element of the "restoration," the rebuilt similitude of the old State House, challenging Virginia's restored Old Capitol and serving as a reminder of the assemblies of the freemen of Maryland who used to meet there and stoutly assert their privilege of shaping the course of Lord Baltimore's colony, not by any means always as that course was charted by Lord Baltimore.

For example, the intruding Puritans of the middle of the seventeenth century abolished toleration, especially toleration of Catholics, and, after a battle on land and water, hanged by the neck sundry of the members of Lord Baltimore's Council of State. In turn, the Church of England people, getting control when William of Orange succeeded Catholic James II, disfranchised the Catholics until the Revolution of 1776 restored their citizenship.

Lord Baltimore encouraged so many different kinds of people to come to Maryland — Catholics, Puritans, Anglicans, Quakers, persons from other colonies with weaker political digestions, that mere variety of opinion created a necessity of practical toleration. The daily contact of Marylander with Marylander tended to destroy the pestilential notion that persons with whom one can not agree are not pleasant neighbors.

WHY limit your fishing thrills to one kind of rod angling? Fish are fastidious. Whether they'll rise to a fly lure or strike at a plug depends on the factors of wind, weather and water. Meet their whims—Fly cast if it's fly rod lures they're hitting. Bait cast if they're striking on plugs or spoon types. For either sport—bait or fly casting—you can depend upon South Bend tackle. Ask your dealer or write for our 96-page book, "Fishing — What Tackle and When."

sport and real hunting. The fox was drawn and hounds thrown on the trail while the hunters followed across country. But in those days the hounds and horses were not as fast as they are today and the little Foxterrier could follow to bolt the fox. The game little fellow seldom went into a den without bringing out the fox, dead or alive. But the introduction of Arabian blood produced faster hunters and the hounds were bred for speed, leaving the shorter-legged Foxterrier far behind the field. For a time the Foxterrier was bred for speed also, but his longer legs then prevented him from going into the den. So the Foxterrier lost his job and breeders began to get away from the lanky model and back to a happy medium between this and the original chunky dog. The result was the Foxterrier we know today, a clean-cut, lithe dog, retaining his gameness and his impudence.

Whether you prefer the Smooth or the Wire-haired Foxterrier is a matter of personal preference. Their characteristics are about the same and they differ only in appearance. The Wire is a more dressy type, but quite as useful for real work in hunting. The chief points to look for in the selection of a Foxterrier puppy are a long, lean head, square muzzle, level mouth, small dark eye, narrow skull, small V-shaped half-drop ears, short back, deep chest, narrow shoulders, good bone and straight forelegs and short cat-like feet. The coat of the Smooths should be dense and in the Wire-hairs a little more profuse and harder to the touch. On no account should the Wire-hairs look or feel woolly.

The Patrician of Terriers

By Alice Read

You'll find him full of pep, intelligence and boundless optimism—this popular little Foxterrier that so rightly shares with the Manchester the title of "the gentleman's terrier." He's an ideal pal for healthy, active children for he will romp all day with the liveliest of them, and at the same time his devotion, self-reliance and cleverness, combined with his nice instincts and jaunty carriage, give the Foxterrier an appeal to the gentleman who wants a real dog.

The history of the modern Foxterrier is full of interest. A century ago he was used to hunt foxes in their underground dens in England. Fox hunting at that time was good
